IN THE BEE TO-DAY

WEATHER.

U. S. Department of Agriculture,
Weather Bureau,
Toledo, O., Oct. 12, 1892.

The storm central over North Dakota changed its course and moved southward, and is now central over Kansas; its movement is not well defined, but it will probably take a northeast course and reach the lake region.

The area of high barometric pressure covers the entire eastern half of the country, and is causing continued fair weather over that section. A second area of high pressure is advancing from the extreme northwest, which will follow in the path of the storm and cause clearing and colder weather.

During the past 24 hours light rains have been reported from portions of Michigan, North and South Dakota, Montana, Wyoming and Nebraska. In all other sections the weather remained fair. It is raining this morning over the west, and will continue during the day. At Cheyenne it is snowing. Over the east the weather will continue fair to-day.

The temperature has fallen over the country west of the Rocky mountains. In all other parts it has risen or remained nearly stationary. It will fall over the west and remain stationary in the east today.

Local forecast for Toledo and vicinity: On Wednesday, fair, stationary temperature. On Thursday, rain, slight change in temperature.

BREAK IT GENTLY.

Mr. Homly is not a beauty and he knows it. When his first baby was born he asked:

"Does it look like me?"

Of course they said yes.

"Well," said he, "you must break it to my wife gently."—New York Press.

"Looks like a ghost!" That's what they say of the pale, thin, weak woman who's "run-down" and overworked. Probably she knows it herself. But there's one thing she can't know, or she wouldn't feel so and look so—and that is, that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is guaranteed to help her.

It's a legitimate medicine, made especially for woman's needs; an invigorating, restorative tonic and a soothing and strengthening nervine, imparting tone and vigor to the whole system.

But it isn't a mere stimulant. It's a remedy, safe and sure, for all the functional derangements, painful disorders, and chronic weaknesses that make women suffer. In "female complaints" of every kind, periodical pains, internal inflammation, ulceration, and kindred ailments, it's guaranteed to benefit or cure, or the money is returned.

No other medicine for women is sold so. Proof that nothing else is "just as good."

LANDING DAY.

Continuation of the New York Celebration.

The Entire East Has Joined Hands

To Make the Celebration a Success.

Many Miles of Parading Citizens and Soldiers.

The Columbus Monument at Baltimore—Cardinal Gibbons' Address — Miscellaneous Mention.

New York, Oct. 12.—This is the third and great day of the Columbian celebration. It is "Landing Day," or discovery day, and for it has been reserved the parade of military. While, perhaps, not the biggest parade of its kind, in fact hardly as large as that of 1889, yet it was an imposing display of the defenders of the country. The troops began to assemble as early as 8 o'clock in the thoroughfares concentrating on the Battery. So complete had been the arrangements that everything moved like clock-work, and promptly at 10 o'clock Gen. Martin C. MacMahon, grand marshal of the day, was enabled to give the word of command for the moving of the column. The United States troops had the right of the line in the following order: Band and three batteries of the Second artillery, and Light Battery B; Fourth artillery, from Fort Adams, R. I.; two batteries of the Second artillery, from Fort Schuyler; band; Light Battery K, and three batteries of the First artillery, from Fort Wadsworth; two batteries of the First artillery, from Fort Columbus (Governor's Island); one company Sixtieth infantry, from Fort Wood (Bedloe's Island); band, and six companies Ninth infantry, from Madison barracks, "Sackett's Harbor, N. Y." One company Ninth infantry, from Fort Ontario; one company Ninth infantry, from Plattsburg barracks; two companies Twenty-first infantry, from Fort Niagara; one company Twenty-first infantry, from Fort Porter.

This completed the first division. In the second division were the militia of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and Rhode Island to a total of over 25,000. The third division comprised 5,000 members of the Grand Army of the Republic, 5,000 exempt firemen and 1,000 letter carriers.

The New York fire department turned out in force, two brigades, or 27 companies, with engines, trucks and everything else pertaining to the department except fire-boats. In the next division were the fire patrol, delegations of firemen from Brooklyn and Baltimore, 3,000 men from the Italian societies, 1,000 Irish Volunteers, several detachments of the Knights of Pythias and Foresters, members of German, French, Bohemian, Polish and Hungarian societies in uniform to a total of over 6,000.

A large contingent of the Sons of Veterans brought up the rear of the parade.

Altogether it was calculated by Anson G. McCook, senior aid to the grand marshal, that fully 80,000 people were in line. The line of march was up Broadway to Fourth, to Washington on square, to Fifth avenue, to Fourteenth street, to Union Square, to Fourth avenue, to Seventeenth street, to Fifth avenue and thence to Forty-seventh street. At Madison Square the parade was reviewed by Vice-President Morton and several hundred officials of this and other cities as far west as Chicago. There were even more spectators on the street to-day than yesterday, and the various divisions were given an enthusiastic reception from the start of the route to the finish.

The military and civil parade of to-day capped the climax of the most successful series of consecutive public demonstrations in the nation's history. Everything in this wonderful week of Columbian celebration has progressed in a sliding scale of increasing merit.

The fervor, earnestness and universality of the religious exercises of that "twin Sabbath—Saturday and Sunday last—were followed by the remarkable school and college procession of Monday. That in turn yielded in interest to the great naval pageant of yesterday, supplemented as it was by the demonstration of the Catholic societies in the evening, so successful and startling in its numerical strength.

But, to quote the official orders, the "assembling, movement and disbandment of the forces of the army, navy, and national guard, the organizations of the Grand Army of the Republic and of the various societies" participating in the military parade this morning, under the marshalship of Gen. Martin T. McMahon, in celebration of the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America, eclipsed all preceding events.

The governors of five great states—New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and Massachusetts—the entire state national guard of New York and powerful provisional brigades from Pennsylvania, Connecticut and New Jersey, strong forces of United States troops and blue jackets, reinforced by such a majestic civic parade as only the great cosmopolitan city of New York can produce, all combined to do honor to the occasion.

Assuredly that "mysterious light" which history says Columbus thought he saw on the eve of this day 400 years ago and anxiously waited for the morning to verify—may now be said to have fully dawned and in the lustre of its beams the country enters upon the fifth century of its known history. How much longer this fever of excitement could be kept up without public danger might be asked, if these demonstrations were to continue.

It seemed yesterday as if the city had never been so full of strangers before; yet they have continued to pour in. All the railroads connecting with distant points New York Central, Erie, Lackawanna, New Jersey Central and West Shore roads were taxed to their full capacity, and had to run their trains in sections. But good order and good humor everywhere prevailed.

Distinguished strangers are plentiful as blackberries in September. Without referring to those enumerated elsewhere as participating in the parade, among those who viewed the proceedings from different points along the route were Mrs. U. S. Grant, Mrs. Cleveland, Mrs. Geo. B. McClellan, Sec't'ries Foster, of both the state and treasury; Secretaries Rusk and Noble, the Italian minister, Baron Fava, who of right has been a leading and interested spectator of the honor paid his countryman; the Turkish minister (Mavroyeni Bey) and many others.

The saying often ascribed to the old Duke of Wellington, that it required military genius to march 10,000 men through the gates of Hyde park, London, and march them out again without a hitch was illustrated in the elaborate arrangements made for the mustering of the immense host to-day.

The order of procession being reversed from that followed on Monday and Tuesday and the parade beginning down town and marching up, instead of starting in the upper portions of the city and marching down, all the leading streets of older New York were laid under contribution as assembling grounds.

The numerous staff of Grand Marshal McMahon met in Washington square, near Broadway at 8:30. Troop "A" of the New York national guard, selected as the escort of the grand marshal, formed on Whitehall street, with its right resting on Beaver street, at 9 o'clock.

The first division—2,000 troops of the United States army—commanded by Col. Langdon, Col. Finley Anderson, chief of staff, formed on the Battery and moved up Whitehall street until the right rested on Bowling Green, which point they were timed to make at 9:45.

GREATEST OF THE AGE.

Wonderful Spectacle in the City of New York.

New York, Oct. 12.—A 5 o'clock this afternoon the magnificent statue of Columbus recently erected in Central park as the outcome of a movement started by the Italian residents of the city will be formally dedicated with imposing ceremonies. But the crowning feature of the celebration and which will commence as soon as night has fallen, will be the grand civic pageant, and which is expected to exceed in interest any exhibition of the kind at the Mardi Gras festival at New Orleans or any other place.

Every effort has been put forth to outdo the splendors of Reax or the Veiled Phophet, and the streets will be illuminated and decorated as they have never been before.

A start will be made from the Battery at 6 o'clock in the following order: Platoon of mounted police, body of cycling clubs with lanterns, mounted cavaliers, twelve heralds bearing banners, band, Grand Marshall John J. Garnett and staff, car of fame, group of 40 Mexican Indians, car of prehistoric America, car of Toltec Sun Worshippers, cavalcade of 50 Spanish grandees, float—Homage to Columbus, mounted group—the Spanish court, the Santa Maria, cavalcade of American discoverers, car of Liberty, group of Puritan colonists, group—William Penn and the Indians, band, George Washington and his staff, soldiers of the Continental army, tribes of Indians, float—The Capitol, marine cadets, 15 mounted [illegible], float—Poetry and Romance, float—Car of Music, band, Car of Science, float—Supremacy of American Women, band, float—The United Oceans, Columbus' car of state, horsemen bearing the banner of Electra, 20 winged Amazons on horseback, band, car of Electra, 5,000 red men. The 5,000 bicyclists will come from the towns about here and each will carry a lantern or colored light.

They will be followed by 12 gorgeously costumed cavaliers on white horses decked with plumes. Each will carry a banner proclaiming the triumph of America. The horses will have trappings made of the national colors. Grand Marshall Garnett will be accompanied by a staff of 25 or more aides, and will be followed by the first float, the Car of Fame. This will represent the winged diety Fame flying over the eastern hemisphere to announce to all the nations of the earth the advent of this celebration.

Europe is pictured with a bull, Africa with tigers, and Australia with kangaroos. Near the float will be a group representing the primeval rock dwellers. The prehistoric car represents a huge cave, surrounded by early inhabitants of this continent, figthing with giant turtles, bears and snakes. A group of Indians will walk about the car.

The Toltec sun worshippers are seen in the act of sacrificing a victim at the foot of a smoking pyramid, while near burning altars of incense Aztec warriors worship the genius of the sun. The float representing homage to Columbus shows a statue of the great discoverer as the pioneer of civilization. He is greeted by History and supported by fame. At the foot of the car sits America, with Spain and Italy on either hand. The cavalcade representing the Spanish court shows Queen Isabella riding under a canopy borne by four knights in full armor. She is followed by lords and ladies of Iberia. The model of Columbus' caravel is drawn by eight Spanish sailors, followed by Ameri Vespucius, Cortez, Pizarro, Ponce de Leon and other early explorers on horseback.

The Car of Liberty shows a statue of Liberty enlightening the world, with figures grouped at her feet. Representatives of various nations stand about typifying the early colonizers of America. At the front of the car sits Justice, supported by Equality and Fraternity, and at the rear are Peace, Good-Will, and Hospitality. The Puritan colonists are grouped around John Alden and Priscilla, both riding the same horse, and are followed by William Penn and mounted Indians.

A model of the capitol at Washington, lighted from within and from without, appears on the next float. It is surrounded by 22 daughters of veterans bearing shields, on which are the arms of the 44 states of the Union. The float is guarded by a corps of veterans of the army and navy and is escorted by the Osborne Marine Cadets and the Junior Naval Reserves.

The press is represented by a beautiful young woman, dressed in black, coming out of an ink bottle. She holds a weather vane in her hand and is surrounded by pens. Behind her are printers at work on a press, who will distribute official programs along the line of march. On the sides of the float are allegorical representations of the New York newspapers, with the inscription, "The pen is mightier than the sword."

Poetry and romance are represented by a flying Pegasus held at the bridle by Longfellow's youth, who through an Alpine village passed bearing a banner inscribed Excelsior. The figurehead of the float is a swan with outstretched wings. Behind the Pegasus is a doorway on top of which Poe's raven sits on a bust of Pallas. Busts of the great American writers are placed on the side of the car.

In the center of the car of music the genius of Harmony and Music sit near a grand lyre. An orchestra of musicians dressed like musical notes will alternate with a vocal quartet in performing during the entire march. A figure of St. Cecilia with her organ sits at the rear of the car.

The car of science shows an astronomer looking through a telescope at Mars and at the moon, and retorts form most of the decorations, and there are large vials inscribed Pasteur's Panacea, Koch's Elixir, and Keeley's (Gold) Cure, and at the front reclines one of the early astrologers.

In the float representing the supremacy of American women a fair maiden sits in a rocking chair on the top of a globe. Cupids are at her feet holding out hearts, and garlands to the sweet girl graduates. Blue stockings are shown in the act of refusing coronets and money bags, while the flags of the world fall at their feet. At the front of the car a young woman is surrendering the latch-key and check-book to her lord, while at the rear a huge cigarette bears the inscription "Man must go." The sides of the car bear the legend "Ubique Gemina Ubinon?" A Cupid swings on a pair of suspenders at one side of the float.

The other floats have no feature worthy of particular attention with the exception of the car of Electra, which it is intended shall be the finest in the parade. It represents a ship propelled by oars in the hands of the presidents of the United States. The bust of Washington is amidships, and Columbus is at the helm steering the ship of state to a haven of safety. The car is labeled "The Hydra of Lightning Controlled by the Genius of Edison," and the inscription is carried out by a huge monster's head filled with electric lights. A winged woman reins the monster by lines of miniature electric lights. Thirty girls in metallic costumes stand on a revolving disk and reflect the lights on the car. In the middle of this group is a globe with latitudinal and longitudinal lines marked by electric lights. There will be 3,000 lights on this car, which will be 30 feet long and drawn by 15 horses.

All the other floats will also be lighted by electricity. This is accomplished by each car carrying a storage battery. From these batteries wires will extend to incandescent lights fixed on reflectors. Men walking at the sides of the floats will carry reflectors like shields on their arms, and thus illuminate the whole line of march.

The floats are about twenty feet in length, and each is drawn by eight horses. The horses will wear gorgeous trappings and plumes. They will be led by grooms. The cost of the pageant will be $30,000. The figures on the cars are represented by men and women hired to take the parts. There will be 750 persons in costum and 150 grooms to lead the 300 horses. Behind the car of Electra will come 5,000 Red Men in costume. Most of these will be on foot, but the sachems, sagamores and chieftains will ride horses. When the parade is over the city will be illuminated and there will be fireworks displays in all the parks.

COLUMBUS MONUMENT.

Cardinal Gibbons' Address in Baltimore.

Baltimore, Oct. 12.—The Christopher Columbus monument in Druid Hill park, was unveiled to-day under the most favorable circumstances. Nearly all of Baltimore had turned out to see the parade and ceremony. Cardinal Gibbons spoke as follows:

"There are two illustrious men to whom, above all others, we are indebted for the temporal blessings which we and our fellow citizens throughout the United States enjoy. You will all, I am sure, agree with me when I mention the names of Christopher Columbus and George Washington as the two men worthy of this distinction.

"We are indebted to Columbus for the land which we possess in peace and tranquility. He it was that discovered this continent 400 years ago. Columbus united to the skill and daring of mariner the zeal of an apostle, and in his voyage of exploration, he was not only impelled by the desire of enriching his sovereign with the wealth of new dominions, but was inspired with the lofty ambition of carrying the gospel to people buried in the darkness of idolatry.

"And if Columbus gave thanks to God when a new world dawned on his vision, how much more fervent should be our gratitude as we enjoy the fruit of his victory. But not for this earthly possession only should we be thankful, but still more for the precious heritage of constitutional freedom which we enjoy. For even this favored land of ours would be to us a dry and barren waste if it were not moistened with the dew of liberty.

"And to whom are we more indebted for this boon than to George Washington, the father of his country?

"May this beautiful monument cement in closer ties of friendship the brotherly love of the citizens of the United States and the people of sunny Italy. And when Americans visit our park and cast their eyes in admiration on this chaste work of art, may the contemplation of the statue kindle in their hearts a stronger affection for the historic land which gave birth to Columbus.

"And when the Italian comes to gaze on this monument erected to his great countryman may the contemplation of it arouse in his breast a greater love for the people of Baltimore who have not only given an honored place to this statue but who have welcomed to their hearts and homes the Italians themselves and invited them to a share in all the rights and privileges of American citizens."

IN GENERAL.

Various Cities Pay Their Respects to Columbus.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—The Auditorium hotel will be the scene to-night of one of the most brilliant banquet of representatives of the Catholic faith ever given in the west. It will be a Columbian banquet in commemoration of Landing Day, and will be under the auspices of the Columbus club. Among those who will respond to the toasts are Archbishop Feehan, Bishop Spalding of Perioa, Dr. Maurice Francis Egan of the University of Notre Dame, Judge William Lewis Kelly of St. Paul, Hon. John Powers of Escanaba, Bishops Ryan of Alton, and Jannsen of Belleville, and Archbishop Satolli of Rome.

Quebec, Oct. 12.—Discovery Day was observed here to-day by the celebration of pontifical high mass in the Basilica, Cardinal Taschereau being the celebrant. On Sunday next, in accordance with the desire of the cardinal, there will be special services in every church of the archdiocese.

THE CADETS' DEPARTURE

Arrangements Completed for the Chicago Trip.

The Company to Go Via the Wabash and B. & O., Leaving Tuesday Night.

Arrangements were completed last evening for the pilgrimage of the Toledo Cadets to Chicago to participate in the Columbus celebration. The company will leave fifty strong from the union depot next Tuesday night. The train will pull out over the Wabash shortly after midnight. At Defiance the cars will be switched on to the B. & O., and Chicago will be reached at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The guns and bicycles will be packed in a baggage car, and the company will occupy a chair car. The train will be solely for the military. Wives and friends will go on another train.

The company will be landed directly on the fair grounds, and will be given quarters in the transportation building along with troops from Indiana, Wisconsin, Texas and Michigan.

According to Gen. Miles' orders each 500 men will have 40,000 square feet, so there will be no crowding, as each cadet will have 80 square feet in which to swing himself.

The orders caution the boys to bring along heavy clothing, extra blankets, their own tin wash basins, etc., consequently each man will be loaded down like a member of an arctic explorer.

The company will probably appear in the parade with the cavalry.

The return trip will be made Sunday, October 23. A little roughing is expected, but a big time and lots of fun is ahead.

WHY HE BOUGHT NO STAMPS.

"Mr. Scribble," said the old millionaire.

"Yes, sir," answered his private secretary.

"Here are 150 begging letters received yesterday."

"Yes, sir."

"And you will observe that every one has a 2-cent stamp inclosed for a reply."

"Yes, sir."

"Well, answer the mail evasively on postal cards, and encourage them to write again."—Texas Siftings.

SALTY TESTIMONY

Given in the Daly Alleged Bribery Case.

Stenographer Bassett Reads His Report

Of the Meetings Held at the Pluto Oil Office Between George Lorenz and Members of the Council.

The bribery trial becomes more interesting and sensational each day.

The state introduced some very damaging testimony yesterday.

The court room was packed all day long, but when the famous interview taken in the cellar by George Bassett was read, standing room was at a premium, and during its reading it was all the court officers could do to preserve order.

When the Bee went to press yesterday afternoon City Clerk Lamb was still on the stand. He testified that the next meeting of the council was held July 4, with a recess on account of the legal holiday.

"At this meeting Mr. Lee moved that the Pluto ordinance be taken from the table."

"Do your records show the negative vote on that question?"

"There was no yea and nay vote taken. Mr. Manchester moved to amend to place the ordinance on the schedule for the next meeting, which was carried by a viva voce vote."

The defense then took the witness, Judge Ritchie conducting the cross-examination. After giving the pages and volumes of the record of the meetings in question, no further cross-examination was made.

Prosecutor Tracy then read the record of the meetings as to the Pluto ordinance, which was made a part of the record of the case.

The state then called David Robison, president of the Toledo Electric Street Railway company.

"Have you ever had any business with Mr. Daly?"

"I have."

"I will ask you if during the months of May or June, you had any business with him?"

"In May or June we presented an ordinance to the railroad committee and gave it to Mr. Daly as chairman on Wednesday morning of that week. We asked him to convene the committee. The next day we went down and saw him again. The committee was convened that evening and the ordinance was presented. The next day Daly came to my office."

"What did Daly say regarding the passage of your railroad ordinance?"

"I cannot answer just as he spoke to me and answer your question."

"Did Daly say anything about money?"

This was objected to, which was overruled.

"He said the Consolidated had offered $10,000 for 10 votes to defeat our ordinance, and I came to put you onto it and give you a pointer. I replied that 10 votes would no do any good. It would take 14. He said, 'I will vote for you,' and named enough to carry the ordinance. My son said, 'John, we will not give a d—n cent.'"

"Were there any other meetings?"

"Yes, there was one on Saturday. There were present my son James and a man named Meilly."

"What did Mr. Daly give as a reason for coming the second time?"

"I think some arrangement between he and James. I think they had an interview."

The defense then took the witness. The questions put were to show that Mr. Daly had not offered to take any money.

"Did Mr. Daly say anything about receiving pay?"

"No, sir."

"He came in a friendly spirit, did he not?"

"He said that he wanted to post me; that the Consolidated had offered $10,000 for 10 votes and that Barton Smith and others were fixing up the scheme."

Willard Robison was next called. He reiterated the testimony given by his father.

"Has Mr. Daly always been friendly to you?"

"He has."

"Has he over during his transactions with you intimated that he wanted any money?"

"No, sir. He expressly signified that he would vote for us, and did not want anything."

Charles Mielly was next called. He was present during the interview between Mr. Robison and Daly, being secreted behind a desk in the same room.

"Do you know Mr. Daly?"

"No, sir."

"Was his name spoken?"

"It was?"

"Who by?"

"By David Robison and son James."

Mielly testified that he was hidden behind the desk at David Robison's request. He heard what transpired and said that Daly gave the information that they could avail themselves on the same terms.

The defense did not cross-examine.

W. H. A. Reed was nxet sworn. He testified that Toledo was a city of the third grade and first class, and was performing all the actions endowed by the legislature as a municipality.

David Robison was recalled and gave the days and dates of the interviews. He did not remember the day of the month.

Mr. Lamb was recalled and testified to the volumes and pages of the city records embracing the Pluto ordinance.

George A. Bassett, the stenographer who was concealed under the floor in Lorenz's office during the interview with the councilman, testified that he has been a stenographer for 10 years.

"I will ask you to state that if in June, 1892 you were employed by Mr. Lorenz and what for?"

"I was employed by Mr. Lorenz to do some shorthand work at the office of the Pluto Oil company."

"Describe office and your situation relatively as to the office."

"The office is located on Jefferson street, between Ontario and Michigan. It consists of rooms on one floor with cellar beneath. The main floor is divided into three rooms. Below the main floor is sort of a cellar."

"Was it light or dark in the cellar?"

"Dark, though there is a door at the rear end."

"What did you do there as stenographer?"

"I was seated on a store box in the cellar and took down the conversation between George Lorenz and various other parties who called while I was in the basement."

"Was it light or dark?"

"It was lighted by leaving the door open. My position was back of the door when it was open."

"Relative to Mr. Lorenz's desk, what was your position?"

"Just below, near an opening in the floor, which was covered with matting. My head was just above the floor beams."

"How well could you hear the conversation?"

"Could hear quite distinctly."

"What was the first day you went there?"

"I cannot remember without turning to my notes. It was in June, some time about the 20th."

"Who was present with you?"

"There was August Machen all of the time, being absent only once a short time, and in addition there was present with me part of the time a man named Frank Smith, bookkeeper for the Pluto Oil company. I took shorthand notes. They were made as the conversation took place."

"Have you the notes with you?"

"I have."

"Do they represent the conversation as it took place?"

"They do."

"Can you state the conversation in full by reference to these notes?"

"I could."

"Can you state the conversation without notes?"

"I can in substance."

"How accurately?"

"I could but merely give the drift as it was impressed upon me at the time, but cannot give it in full or correctly."

"Turn to your notes and give the conversation."

"Which conversation do you refer to?"

"The first."

"It occurred June 22, 1892, 2:20 p. m."

"After reading those notes how does it refresh your recollection?"

"They would refresh my recollection very much. These notes have been in the hands of the prosecuting attorney and I have not seen them until last evening."

"Whose conversation did you first take?"

"One between Frank Tanner and George Lorenz."

The defense objected on the ground that Mr. Bassett was not present.

"How do you know the conversation took place between George Lorenz and Frank Tanner?" inquired Mr. Barber.

"I know so by Tanner's voice."

The objection was overruled.

"Do you know Frank Tanner's voice?"

"Yes, sir."

"What was the first conversation?"

"Mr. Lorenz said 'Hello, Frank, come in.'"

"'What was the matter with the fellows last night,' asked Geo. Lorenz."

Bassett requested time to figure out his notes. He testified to making three transcripts of the notes; that the transcripts were correct and identified, one submitted by the prosecutor as being one of the three referred to. He stated that it contained the same report of the conversation as it appeared in his notes.

"I will ask you to give the conversation as it took place between George Lorenz and Frank Tanner?"

Mr. Ritchie objected to the use of the transcript, which was overruled.

Mr. Ritchie asked permission to put a question which was granted.

"You say you only took what you heard clearly?"

"I did."

"That's all."

Mr. Bassett then proceeded to read from the transcript a conversation between Mr. Geo. Lorenz and Frank Tanner.

L—"I guess Doner must have something personal against me. We explained the whole thing to him. I think he has something personal."

T—"May be he thinks you have something against him."

L—"I have nothing against him."

T—"I have not heard anything."

L—"Look here, Frank, we want to get something done about that ordinance."

T—"You can get it through to-night if you put up a whack."

L—"What will that be?"

T—"You can not get it through for a cent less than $5,500."

Mr. Bassett explained that there was times when the conversation was carried on so low that he could not make it out, and he only made note of what he heard distinctly. He continued to read:

L—"How do you know it will go through?"

T—"I know it is all right."

L—"That is what I want to find out."

T—Well, I know that, Mr. Lorenz. You have always been a friend of mine. I know they want it and want it bad."

L—"How do you know?"

T—"Because I know, but I am not going to tell who they are."

L—"Well, I want to know something about it."

T—"You can get that ordinance through by handing a certain man $5,500. I don't care who you hand it to. We can take the ordinance off the table to-night. Why did you not drop us something last night. I have been in the council for 15 months and worked hard all the time. I never missed a meeting, committee or any other. I never have got a cent for the work, but my street car fare. Coleman has been getting the stuff from every council he was ever in."

L—"Who from?"

T—"Well, from the street railroad companies, for instance."

L—"He did not get anything on pipe line?"

Tanner—"No. Well, I think he got some Paragon stuff, but I don't know."

L—"Coleman voted for us."

T—"I do not know how he voted, but I do know he got money out of every G—D— council he was ever in."

T—"I do know a certain party whom he told about a certain deal and of which he got $400 and that fellow gave the whole D— snap away."

Here a break occurred in the report, but when next heard Tanner was talking.

T—"I will not mention names, but I am not one of the number."

L—"I want you to tell me so I will know who to count on."

T—"Well, I can guarantee eleven votes for the ordinance."

L—"You talk big number, Frank."

T—"Well, I know what I am talking about. I can get votes, or John Daly can."

L—"Coleman is not one of your eleven."

T—"No, sir, it is just us young fellows."

L—"Well, I am sorry you came to us. We are young in the business, have been to a big expense, and are not as rich as the Standard. Again it will take more than ten votes to take the ordinance off the table."

T—"Yes it will take 14 votes to take it off the table. But it will come off just the same."

L—"I believe the ordinance will go through anyhow."

T—"Indeed it will not and you can't get it through. You can't get ten, eight, seven, six, or five votes. Mr. Lorenz, if you were to offer me $10,000 spot cash for my vote, I could not take it. That ordinance will go through for $5,500 and not a cent less."

Here another break in the note occurred.

Mr. Lorenz was heard by the stenographer in the cellar, saying: "That is hitting us pretty hard for poor people like we are."

Another break, after which, the witness testified, Tanner's voice was heard saying: "I told the fellows that, and they said we would cut the price to you, right in two. And nothing goes but the long green."

L—"How do I know it will go through if I put up?"

T—"Well, you can put up, and if the ordinance does not go through you can have the stuff back."

L—"You might go out and get Daly and bring him here at 5 o'clock."

T—"All right, I will get Daly and return before 5 o'clock."

L—"You bring Daly and we will try and fix the matter up. We are very anxious to get this ordinance through."

T—"You can not get it through unless you put up, that is sure. I could not get it through for my brother."

Mr. Bassett testified that at 4:37 Tanner returned accompanied by Daly.

L—"Mr. Daly, Frank was in here

CLEVELAND CAN'T LOSE

The Ball Penant Goes to the Forest City.

The Usual Double Dealing Fails to Work.

Standing of the Clubs As They Race Down the Home Stretch—General Mention.

The defeat of Boston yesterday, and the fact that Cleveland was not defeated, settles the championship of the second season in favor of the local team. There was some mystery as to why the Boston club should play two games with Brooklyn. The Leader telegraphed President Young last night asking him whether Boston and Brooklyn had any postponed games. He replied in the negative and stated in addition that he had no means of knowing why two games were played.

It is more than likely that the management at Brooklyn, despairing of any attendance during the Columbian festivities, decided to end the season with a grand flourish of trumpets. It really did not make any particular difference whether two games were played yesterday or one on that date and one to-day. It is now an impossibility by any combination of postponed games to defeat Cleveland, and there will be no necessity for Boston to meet Baltimore again.

There has been some comment in local base ball circles relative to an alleged "let down" upon the part of the Clevelands at the present time. This is hardly a fair criticism. The fact does not seem to be taken into consideration by a majority of the base ball enthusiasts of this city that Cleveland has had much stronger clubs to contend against than Boston. The strongest aggregation that the Bostons have met has been the Brooklyns and the pennant winners of the first half could do no more than break even. Cleveland, on the contrary, has had a long series of games with Pittsburg, Cincinnati and Chicago, three clubs considerably stronger than the eastern teams. There is far more credit in Clevelands victories than in those of the Bostons.

The standing to date is as follows:

	W.	L.	Pr. c.
Cleveland	51	22	.699
Boston	47	26	.644
Brooklyn	42	32	.568

Independence, Ia., Oct. 12.—Good weather again favored the Rush Park meeting, and three good races were the consequence. Glitter won the first race, 2:25 trot, in straight heats. In the first heat five of the 14 starters were in a bunch at the distance and were declared out, but on a complaint of the drivers four of them were allowed to start again. In the race for 2-year-olds that never before started, Chester T. was too good for his field and won the two heats handily. Eggleton was the winner of the 2:40 pace, after dropping the first heat to Judge West in 2:28 1-4. Summary:

Boston, Oct. 12.—Considering the chilly weather the attendance at the opening of the October trotting meeting at Mystic park was excellent. Those present saw good races and several horses lower their records. In the 2:40 class San Jacinto, the favorite, was distanced in the first heat. The 2:27 pace class was the closest of the days events, and there were some pretty finishes. Pure Wilkes trotted an exhibition mile in 2:25 3-4. Summaries:

Chicago Oct. 12.—Arrangements are now pending with the owners of Mascot and Jay Eye See by which one or both of the fleet-footed pacers will be brought to Washington Park next week to go against some of the wheelmen. It was intended to have a match race with Nancy Hanks, but she cannot be here on account of other arrangements. The meet promises to be highly successful, as some of the best riders in the country will be here. Zimmerman, Lumsden, Beerlow and Tyler will ride, and several cracks will be taken at Johnson's record of 1:56 3-5 on the kite-shaped track, the riders to be paced by a running horse hitched to a sulky with pneumatic tires.

Nashville, Oct. 12.—The executive committee of Cumberland Park association have just closed a contract with Budd Doble to start Nancy Hanks here on Thursday, October 20, to beat her present record of 2:04. The famous track builder, Seth Griffin, is now here putting the track in the most perfect order, and he says Nancy shall start here over the fastest track he has trotted this year. Under these conditions Mr. Doble is positive he can beat all previous efforts, and close the season with the world's trotting record hung over the gate of Cumberland park. Arion and Sunol will be here also, and the struggles of these three most famous trotters to beat all existing records will be the events of the year. Excitement all over the state is at fever heat regarding the coming trotting meeting, and mammoth excursions are being organized in different sections both in this and adjoining states to accommodate the crowds that are coming.

New Orleans, Oct. 12.—Bob Fitzsimmons, who is here ploying an engagement with a theatrical company, says he is prepared to meet Jim Corbett as soon as his engagement is over, and will fight him for a purse of $25,000 if any club will put up the money. Fitzsimmons is bitter at the treatment accorded him by Corbett after the Sullivan fight. He disclaims any desire for notoriety, and says that he has all along wanted to meet the Californian, especially after what he did to him in this city last month.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 12.—Yesterday was the most pleasant day since the Breeders' meeting began, and the horses took advantage of the weather and track, putting in most of the heats below 2:15. Nellie Mason started off with a mile in 2:14 1-4, and captured the 2:17 class left over from yesterday in another heat with nothing able to head her.

Then the pacers had a long battle of six heats, of which the first favorite, Cleveland S., failed to secure one, Storm finally getting on his good behavior and winning in fast time. The sixth mile was paced in 2:12 3-4. The dash for 2:14 trotters was a novelty here, but went off smoothly, though Honest George had too much speed for the other six and was not headed after he took the pole at the turn. His time for the nine furlongs was 2:31 1-4, and the Buffalo flyer trotted the first mile in 2:14. So Long got a bad start, but came home fast and beat Walter E. for the place. Greenleaf was the selection for the 2:19 trot, though he was in the Transylvania stake Wednesday, and the gelding won a creditable victory over Una Wilkes without having to lower his record of 2:13 1-4 made at Terre Haute. A break in the third heat gave Una Wilkes a chance which she improved by getting a new mark, 2:15. Kentucky Union far outclassed the pair of three-year-olds she met in the open event for that age and it was 10 to 1 on her. The great filly had only fair exercise to land the money in straight heats. Just after pulling up in the second heat of the 2:19 class, Sallie B., a dun colored mare by Young Jim, dam by Copperbottom, staggered and fell over, dying in a few minutes. She had a record of 2:20, and competed in the Transylvania stake Monday as well. For to-day the 2:23 trot comes first, then the free-for-all with Ryland T., Jack, Charleston, Matie H., and other cracks. A 2:35 class closed last night, a dash of one mile for 3:30 trotters. The report that Sunol is to go against time here has no foundation, Secretary Tipton having had no intimation regarding any such event. Summaries:

New Orleans, Oct. 12.—Bob Fitzsimmons has affixed his signature to a contract to fight Jim Hall at catch weights before the Olympic club of this city about February 1, for a purse of $15,000. President Noel immediately cabled Hall in London asking if he was willing to accept.

New York, Oct. 12.—Joe Goddard, who will claim the championship to-day unless Jim Corbett covers his $1,000 forfeit, which has been up a month, will fight Peter Maher, but not for the $5,000 purse offered by the Coney Island Athletic club. The Australian wants more money than the sum named.

"I do not blame the members of the Coney Island club for making all the money they can," said Billy Madden, "but here is a contest that will not draw a penny less than $30,000. And the boxers are to get one-sixth of that sum. That's all very well, but Goddard believes the club could raise its offer and still make a great deal of money. This fight will be for the world's championship. Some persons may smile, but facts are facts. Corbett has failed to cover Goddard's money. We don not ask him to fight immediately, but will agree to have the match take place in eight months. Surely that is a reasonable time. As Corbett has not shown any disposition to defend his title, why, it must go to a man who is willing to defend it against all comers. Otherwise the fighting comes to a standstill all of a sudden. The title will not purchase any bread and beef, as Paddy Slavin said, but the rules governing the championship must be carried out."

NOVEL FIRE ESCAPE.

Head First or Feet First It Don't Matter.

The School Children of Louisville Give Messrs. Hanner and Wall An Interesting Exhibition.

Mr. Chas. Hanner and Chief Wall, who have returned from Louisville, where they have been inspecting the fire apparatus, tell an interesting story of a peculiar system of fire escape they saw in operation there.

It is a large funnel-shaped iron pipe, inside of which is a corw-screw arrangement by which an easy and safe exit can be made from any floor of the building to the street.

"We saw it in operation," Mr. Hanner said, "and it is truly remarkable. The school children were dismissed and orders given to descend through the fire escape. The children would walk into the iron box, sit down and away they would whirl down the cork-screw apparatus to the street below. They came down by hundreds sometimes head first and sometimes feet first. Two firemen stood at the base of the escape and placed the little ones on their feet and set them aside as soon as they touched the sidewalk. There is absolutely no danger of sticking in the pipe or striking anything on the downward passage. The turns are so arranged that the rate of speed is limited. The passage downward is rapid, and yet not rapid enough to daze or rattle one.

"The little ones seemed to enjoy it hugely, and quite a number of men and women tried it and liked it immensely."

A BUSY MONTH

For the Officers of the Humane Society.

Thirty-Four Destitute, Deserted and Orphan Children Cared For—Any Citizen, Adult or Child, Can Make Arrests.

A small number of the members of the Humane society were in attendance at the monthly meeting last evening. Mr. Bond presided.

Humane Officer France read a long list of crime punished, destitution relieved, and cruelty to animals stopped by him during the past month.

One of the cases of cruelty mentioned was that of feeding live pigeons to the huge reptiles in the Wonderland museum.

It seems difficult to realize that in this civilized land there are people with tastes so perverted as to enjoy this hideous and cruel sight, but the humane officer found dozens of persons around the snakes' cage, evidently enjoying the sight.

As soon as he explained to the manager that this must be stopped and showed his badge, the pigeons were removed and the exhibition has not been repeated.

Another case of extreme cruelty was the horses frightfully abused, which case has been pretty thoroughly aired in police court.

Cases of desertion and cruelty to family and children have been numerous and brutal, as will be seen by the tabulated report.

Mr. France read the law in regard to the right of any citizen to make arrest where animals or persons are being abused. Any one can arrest in such cases.

AT THE THEATERS.

A Texas Steer, a Mad Bargain, the Wonderland.

Mindreader Seymore, One of the Bravest—The Wife and Charity Ball Coming.

Messrs. Rich & Harris with that peculiar energy so characteristic of this knowing firm of Boston managers, have given James T. Powers a new comedy; they had no intention of letting him grow stale in A Straight Tip, and A Mad Bargain is the result of their determination. Mr. Powers will be seen here to-morrow evening at Wheeler's in this new play. It is the joint work of John J. McNally, the author of A Straight Tip, and of Julian Mitchell. The comedy is happily described as a three-act play of laughter brimming over with incident and rich in situation. The deadly specialty has been avoided as much as possible, and in its place are bright lines, funny situations and ingenious climaxes. The company has been most carefully selected with a view of continuing Mr. Powers in the same brilliant path of success that has marked his career under the Rich & Harris management. In his support are Peter F. Daly, who will be most gladly welcomed wherever A Straight Tip was played, and where magnetism and originality are appreciated. Rachel Booth will be seen in the soubrette role, and she enjoys the double distinction of being a pretty woman and a clever actress. Others in the cast are Delia Stacy, who was with Mr. Powers the two seasons in which he coined money with A Straight Tip; Louise Sylvester, one of the best character actresses in America; W. W. Allen, J. Herbert Mack, Julian Mitchell, Frank Howard, Rose Cooke, John Frees, Frank M. Kendrick and others. A peculiarly strong scenic effect is introduced in the second act which has the somewhat unique merit of being absolutely original. There will also be seen in the piece a striking lot of incidental business secured by Mr. Powers on his trip to London, Paris and Vienna during the past summer.

Friday and Saturday.

Hoyt's successful comedy, A Texas Steer, will be seen in Toledo Friday and Saturday evenings. Hoyt has the peculiar faculty of writing sense and still making fun. Too many musical comedies are composed without plot or much of anything else except what the actors introduce. All of Hoyt's comedies have been successful and A Texas Steer will prove no exception. Tim Murphy and Flora Walsh head the company, and the remainder of the cast is correspondingly strong. The piece is a satire on American politics, and in the subject there is ample field for some good work.

A Good Week.

The Wonderland has captured the people this week. The mind reader Seymour is giving a marvelous performance, but that is not all. The program contains the musical monarchs, Emery and Russell, the Swiss singer, Lillian Melborne; the famous Warshauer Brothers, the boy comedians, the Brunnelles, the Italian Gypsy band, and Rattlesnake Tom with his den of 40 snakes. The musee and theater have been crowded and everyone who attends is pleased.

Other Attractions.

Chas. McCarthy is drawing good crowds at the People's this week.

Florence Bindley will be the attraction at the People's next week.

Thursday and Friday evenings of next week Frohman's company will present The Charity Ball and The Wife at Wheeler's.

GRAND RALLY

Of the International Association of Machinists

At Carpenters' Hall Last Evening—Ringing Speech by Mr. Harry Easton, of Omaha.

About 500 people gathered at Carpenters' hall last evening, the occasion being the machinists' grand rally and reception in honor of their general organizer, Mr. Harry Easton, of Omaha.

Mr. Salkald presided and introduced the guest of honor, Mr. Easton, who immediately began a spirited address on the impositions imposed by employer on employe, and in most emphatic terms informed the workmen that they alone were to blame for these indignities.

Eternal vigilence is the price of liberty. And to keep his trade up to a standard where fair wages must be paid for a fair day's work, the workman must post himself on the needs of his craft. He must be generous—that is, he must not, for the sake of making an extra quarter, be willing to work 12 or 14 hours per day; by so doing he is taking bread from the mouths of the surplus laborers.

An eight-hour day is sufficient work for one man. Don't be greedy, or jealous. There is work enough for all in this fair land.

The speaker denounced the nefarious piece-work system.

In the machinists' trade there is no place for the dude. There have been men who were afraid to soil their hands with dirty work, who have given it to boys and men who were willing, and in this manner have offered a premium to second, third, fourth and fifth class machinists who think the only qualification for a master mechanic, is a pair of overalls.

There are to-day, as a result of this dudeism, 2,000 or 3,000 men in this country signing their names M. M., who don't know as much about machines, as the machines do about them.

A machinist in the international association is now fined $5 for refusing to do any kind of work pertaining to the machinists' trade.

The speaker referred sarcastically to the class of men who find favor in the eyes of kindergarten and manual training foremen, by gifts and flattery.

Good, honest, skilled labor should be able to command favor, and nothing eles.

Mr. Easton spoke a kind word for the traveling mechanic.

The bum element has been entirely driven out, and the mechanic who is now traveling about the country is honest and industrious and shuns the bar-room. He doesn't mean to steal your job; don't be jealous of him; but you must give a little of your labor to this surplus class, or be willing to feed them. When hunger is staring a man in the face he is not altogether responsible for his actions.

Mr. Easton talked for about an hour, and was cheered to the echo.

When he concluded, Mr. Ed Hoffman spoke for a few minutes in an earnest, hearty manner, and was also generously applauded.

Mr. Easton left the city at 5 o'clock this morning, and should he ever again address a Toledo audience, Carpenters' hall would not hold the crowd.

TOLEDO CYCLERS

To Have a Race Track and Outing Grounds.

Concert To Be Given November 4 at Memorial Hall in Aid of the Project.

The Toledo Cycling club has in contemplation the construction of a racing track and outing grounds.

At Memorial hall on the evening of November 4, a concert will be given by the Emerson club under the auspices of the Cycling club. The proceeds of the entertainment will go toward securing a site for the proposed outing grounds.

The club is an organization of which Toledo has reason to be proud, and those interested in the progress and prosperity of the city should encourage the boys in the excellent enterprise contemplated by liberally patronizing the concert.

Silver spoons, $1.25, $1.50, $2—Cawood's.

AN UNCONSCIOUS RESCUER.

"A little child kept me from killing a man once," said a guest of the Southern to a St. Louis Globe-Democrat reporter. "Some years ago I was conducting a store for other parties at Winneconne, Wis. I had a clerk who systematically robbed me. I finally came up with him and he made a clean breast of the matter. He said that he had been hired to plunder the store by one of the owners, who was my rival for the hand of a young lady in Fond du Lac. His object was to fix upon me the crime of embezzlement and send me to Waupun. I was young and hotheaded, and at once went gunning for the heavy villain of my little drama. I found him in a store at Fond du Lac, and informed him that his time had come. The miserable wretch got down on his knees and begged for his life, but I was pitiless. As I brought my pistol down on him his sister, a wee toddler whom I had not before noticed, threw her arms about his neck. She thought he had knelt down to play with her. That was too much for me. I pitched my revolver into the river and threw up my position. But I got the girl. The hero was rewarded if the villain did go unpunished."

Temperance Meeting To-Night.

The friends of temperance co-operation are likely to have a large meeting of the Toledo Union Temperance association at Davis' Business college this evening at 7:30 sharp. Many ministers have promised to be present, with representatives from each church and church society. The temperance societies have appointed representatives. Any person complying with the rules can join, whether delegate or not. An addition to the state laws will be proposed by a prominent lawyer, which, if adopted, will give local option to every city, block, voting precinct, ward and school district in the state.

Grand General Social.

Arrangements are being perfected for a grand general social to be given at St. Paul's M. E. church under the auspices of the official board next Tuesday. All the societies attached to the church—the Epworth League, the four missionary societies, the King's Daughters and the Sunday school—will participate.

The Wells Packing Co. in It.

It was stated in the Bee that inasmuch as the Hammond and Swift companies were coming in here that the International and Wells would withdraw. This was an error. Their representative, Mr. R. S. Fluke, says that they will not. The Wells company will retain its present customers and hustle for more, with its usual energy.

Criminal Carelessness.

Night before last an electric car ran over and killed a dog at the corner of Adams and Eleventh streets. The health office was notified, and yesterday morning an official "viewed the mangled remains," simply that and nothing more. Several times yesterday the health office was notified, but the dog still lays where he died. This morning the remains were still there. This is nothing less than a gross piece of criminal carelessness.

The Baumgardner Building.

Mr. Matt Theis, who has the contract for erecting the Baumgardner building, corner of Summit and Oak streets, is pushing the work rapidly. Mr. Theis is one of the most thorough and practical contractors in Toledo, and has an established reputation for fair dealing and honesty second to none in Toledo. The fact that Mr. Theis has the contract assures a thoroughly good job.

The State's Health.

The weekly health bulletin issued by the state board of health shows 145 cases of diphtheria in the state and 39 daths; 101 cases of scarlet fever and 4 deaths; 57 cases of typhoid fever and 11 deaths; 17 cases of whooping cough and no deaths. Toledo reported seven cases of diphtheria and two deaths: four cases of scarlet fever and one death: five cases of typhoid fever and one death, and one case of measles.

Will Employ No. 7 Painters.

The Painters' union held a short session last evening, the only business of importance transacted being the placing of Mr. John Brereton's shop on the union list, the difficulties between the firm and No. 7 having been satisfactorily settled.

An official notice was sent to Mr. Brereton to this effect, and the meeting then adjourned, the painters going to Carpenters' hall in a body, to attend the Machinists' grand rally.

Collingwood Avenue Property Sold.

Real estate in Collingwood avenue is moving at a lively rate and prices are increasing with every sale.

Irving B. Hiett this morning closed an important sale of property in this vicinity. He sold to W. J. Walding for the Emerson estate, a lot on the northwesterly corner of Collingwood avenue and Bancroft street, for $12,000. The lot fronts 100 feet on Collingwood avenue and 300 feet on Bancroft street.

Happily Wedded.

A marriage in which a number of Toledoans are interested took place at Hotel Doxey, Anderson, Ind., October 5, last. Corey N. Shaw, so long with Shepler & Co., Toledo, who has been nearly a year in Anderson, was united in marriage with Miss Ella E. Lefler, only daughter of Wm. Lefler, proprietor of the Doxey, where Mr. Shaw is employed as day clerk. Mr. and Mrs. Shaw have been spending a few days with Mr. Shaw's mother, Mrs. Clara Shaw, at the old home on Jefferson street, leaving the city on Monday, the 10th. With other souvenirs of the happy event that fluttered Toledoward, is an elaborate menu of the wedding dinner, which was made a very festive occasion. The bride is a lovely young woman, and "Corey" has a large circle of friends to extend warm congratulations on his good fortune. Mr. and Mrs. Shaw will be at home at Hotel Doxey, Anderson, after their wedding journey is concluded.

A Day of Fun and Frolic.

A "heyday" and jolly time in store at Grand Rapids, Ohio, on Friday of this week, for the children, parents and members of the Adams Street Mission, who go on the complimentary excursion given the mission by President and Manager Callawy, of the St. Louis & Kansas City railroad. Dr. Gardner, of Grand Rapids, writes that "not only a large store room, but our public hall and a corn crib have been secured, and ladies of our different churches on Sunday made arrangements to make sandwiches for entertaining your mission folks."

Let it be understood that all who have not gotten tickets shall call at Adams Street Mission to-morrow (Thursday) evening, 7 to 7:30 o'clock, for them. The excursion starts from the Clover Leaf railroad on Erie street, near Lafayette street, 7:30 city time, Friday morning, and all who go must be in the cars not later than 7:15 o'clock.

The Fourth Ward in Line.

Last evening the Fourth ward democratic club held a rousing and enthusiastic meeting at their hall, corner of Nebraska avenue and Division street, and action was taken that will insure the club being heard from at the forthcoming election.

The meeting was called to order by Ward Committeeman Joseph A. Steineman, who briefly stated the objects of the gathering. He was then unanimously elected permanent chairman.

Upon motion of Mr. John O'Dwyer, Mr. Con D. Sweeney was elected permanent secretary, and on motion of Alderman Huberich, Mr. O'Dwyer was elected treasurer of the organization.

During the meeting the following committees were appointed:

Committee of arrangements—John O'Dwyer, Wm. Gannon, John Huberich.

Committee of finance—Precinct A, Dan Doner; B, Wm. Bretsch; C, John Sweeney; D, Joseph Bitterly; E, John Huberich.

At the conclusion of the business affairs of the meeting Mr. Huberich was loudly called upon for a speech, and amidst cheering and applause made one of his characteristic talks that brought down the house. Mr. Huberich's democratic principles are too well known to need any extended description.

HORSES ARRIVING

For the Red Ribbon Meeting—Over 50 on the Track Yesterday.

There were over 50 horses on the race track at the exposition grounds yesterday afternoon.

The track is in splendid condition, and the success of the races is assured if the weather man can be induced to continue the present sunlight and warmth.

There are 73 entries in all.

Reserved seat and admission tickets are on sale at West's drug store, and they are being sold rapidly.

Saturday will be the big day, probably, but there will undoubtedly be large crowds here to-day and to-morrow.

COLUMBIAN DAY

Societies Still Reporting to Col. Bunker.

October 21 will be a memorable day in the history of Toledo.

Col. Bunker is kept busy registering and placing the societies that continue to report and want places in the great parade.

Following are those reported since yesterday:

Toledo post, G. A. R., will turn out 100 strong, and Volunteer post about the same.

Camps Sibley and P. S. Slevin Sons of Veterans report that they will turn out in a body.

Trinity Cadets will be there 50 strong

Ancient Order of Foresters, Court Harmony, 400 strong.

Union Veterans' Union in a body.

St. Mary's Catholic church, consisting of St. Michael's society, 200; St. Joseph's, 50; Yuengling, 150; C. K. of A. 125, and 400 children.

Wm. Gates' naphtha launch Speranza will be handsomely decorated, and in the evening will tow a number of sailing yachts.

Custar division, same, 30 men.

A FORMER TOLEDO MAN

Murdered in Cold Blood at Brock's Gap, Alabama.

The Cincinnati Commercial Gazette has the following account from Birmingham, Ala., of the murder of a former Toledo man:

Sunday afternoon, at Brock's Gap, Wm. Brandon, a young man of 22, murdered in cold blood J. T. Pepple, an old man of 65. Pepple had been to Birmingham and returned on the afternoon train. As he got off the train and started toward his farm, near by, he was accosted by Wm. Braswell, who engaged him in conversation. While they were talking, Brandon, who is a cousin of Braswell, came up and deliberately shot Pepple three times in the breast with a pistol. The two young men then flourished their pistols and walked off without interruption from the numerous spectators. They are still at large. Pepple came here from Toledo, O., about seven years ago, and made a great deal of money in the boom, which he lost on the collapse, when he removed to his farm. He owned property in Toledo and only last week made a sale of a portion of it. Braswell lived on his farm three years ago, and it is supposed had a difference with Pepple then, out of which grew the murder of Sunday.

A PRETTY WEDDING

Was That of Miss Tessie McCleary and Floyd J. Norris at Noon To-Day.

At noon to-day occurred the marriage of Miss Tessie M. Cleary to Mr. Floyd J. Norris, of Turner, Ill. The ceremony was performed by Rev. B. K. Ormond, of the Third Presbyterian church, and took place at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Cleary, 623 Knower street. The bride is a popular young lady in this city and a large number of guests were present at the wedding.

The bride's costume was a beautiful silk challie, trimmed with costly lace and she carried a bunch of bride's roses. The bridesmaids were Miss Fannie Sterling and Miss Emma S. Logan; the former was dressed in pink and the latter in cream Henrietta, and they carried red and yellow roses respectively.

The groomsmen were Messrs. E. J. Williams and Roy Norris, the latter a brother of the groom.

The newly married couple left this afternoon for Turner, Ill., and their future home will be at 1571 Fulton street, Chicago. Among the guests from out of town were: Mrs. C. K. Brown, St. Louis, Mo.; Mrs. W. H. Van Meter and son, Elkhart, Ill.; Mr. Roy Norris, Turner, Ill.; Mr. E J McWilliams, Turner, Ill

A BIG GRAIN SEASON.

Toledo Is Regaining Its Old Time Activity.

Boats Are Pressed to Handle the Business, Elevators Are Full and Have Been Running Nights to Keep Up.

Some years ago Toledo was a big grain center, but gradually the tide of business was diverted for one reason and another. This state of affairs continued until the present season, which has seen a great change that argues well for the city.

Toledo has not seen such an active grain season in years, and all interested think that the change for the better will be permanent, and next year's business locally will show a still greater increase.

Elevators that had lain idle for some years have been brought into use, and some have had to put on night forces and work until 10 p. m. The railroads have had more grain back than could well be handled here, as the influx was so unexpected.

The boats between here and Buffalo have been tested to their utmost capacity and next season more will have to be added. General Freight Agent Weed, of the Clover Leaf, says that his company's boats could carry nothing but grain to the exclusion of package freight, and be kept busy. He says and so does Manager Colton, of the Wabash line, that the boats will be kept running until ice prevents.

"I am under the impression," said Mr. Weed to a Bee, "that Toledo is regaining its prominence as a grain center. There is no reason why it should not. Where will you find a city so favorably located or facilities for handling grain so cheap?"

LATE MARKETS.

The receipts of wheat at Toledo to-day are 11,633 bu less than on the corresponding Wednesday in 1891.

The receipts at seven points are 363,135 bu in excess of Wednesday, 1891. The northwest receipts exceed 1891 by 126,753 bu, and at five other points the excess is 236,386 bu.

The wheat markets opened weak this morning and made a fractional decline. The weakness was caused by dull foreign markets and reports of a trace of rain on the western wheatfields. Later, Chicago had a report that Col. Dodge would issue an estimate of the loss in weight of the crop, and the market advanced on it 3-4c. You do not need Col. Dodge's estimate, gentlemen and will not get it, in all probability. We made a conservative estimate of it ourselves yesterday, aggregating 26,000,000 bu, and we believe it a fair one.

Corn opened lower and declined, but when wheat started corn followed and regained the loss.

December wheat in Chicago advanced to 76 1-8c and lost 1-4c at the close. Corn was maintained at the advance above noted.

Liverpool wheat market closed with a little better demand.

In New York—It is a holiday.

In Chicago October wheat closed at 73c, a gain of 1-2c; May at 81 3-8c, a gain of 5-8c; December at 75 7-8c, a gain of 1-2c; May at 81 3-8c, a gain of 1-2c. October corn at 42 1-4c, a loss of 1-8c; May unchanged at 46 1-2c. October oats at 29 3-4c, a loss of 3-8c.

In Toledo there has been less trading in wheat than yesterday and a little unsteadiness in prices. December and May were the futures traded in. Opening at about yesterday's closing prices, with a very dull market. Later prices began to improve and nearly all the business reported was after that. At the close December was 3-4c up and May 7-8c. On the call December sold at 76 1-4c. On the regular board October closed at 74 1-2c, November at 75 1-2c, December sold at 76 1-4 to 76c and closed at 76 3-4c, May sold at 81 3-4c and closed at 82 3-4c.

Cash wheat—No. 2 soft was dull and the sales were light, opening at 73 3-4 and closing at 74 1-2, a gain of 1-2; No. 3 soft was in good demand with sales of 100,000 bu. Sales at 67 1-4 to 67 and at close the market was 67 1-2; December sold at 70; No. 4 soft at 60; rejected No. 1 at 62 1-2 to 63; No. 2 at 50 to 53; mixed No. 2 at 70 1-4; No. 3 at 63 1-2; No. 2 hard at 69; No. 3 at 66; No. 1 white at 74; No. 2 at 72. Corn, No. 2 at 44; No. 3 at 43; No. 2 white at 44; No. 3 yellow at 43 1-2. Rye, rejected at 41. Clover seed was fairly active and long futures opened 5c lower, but more than regained the loss. Prime for cash at 6.30; October, 6.30; December at 6.32 1-2 to 6.5; January at 6.40, closing at 6.50; March 6.50 and closing higher; No. 2 sold at 6.00 to 6.10.

THEY'RE DISSATISFIED

With the Inspection of Wheat at Toledo.

St. Louis Parties Here—Their Chief Inspector Goes Through Cars and Says the Wheat Was Graded Wrong.

A representative of the Louis Sharp Commission company, of St. Louis, and James Miller, the chief grain inspector at that place, are in Toledo to make an attempt to rectify what they hold is an unfair grading of the wheat shipped here from St. Louis of late. The Sharp company consigns wheat to the Reynolds of this city. Last Wednesday the change in the grading was made, wheat designated as soft wheat by the Sharps being graded as mixed. Inasmuch as before Wednesday last this same kind of wheat passed muster as soft wheat, the St. Louis men came on to adjust matters. The representative holds that no exchange has a right to change the grading in the middle of the season and without notice.

Chief Inspector Miller examined wheat in the cars here this morning, and pronounced it soft wheat, although it had been graded otherwise. The grievances of the St. Louis parties were brought before the directors of the Exchange this morning and another conference will be held this afternoon, when the matter will be settled one way or the the other.

Sharp's representative says that if their matter matter of grading is decided against them they will send no more grain to Toledo, and he declares that other shippers would soon commence to set up a howl as well.

THE LIGHTNING-LIKE LOON.

The loon is the quickest living creature. A loon that has had experience can dodge the flash of a gun. You see a loon on a lake, but long before you see him he sees you and has taken a mental inventory of you and your belongings. If you have no gun you may perhaps approach within 100 yards before he laughs at you with that horrid shriek which gives him his name and disappears under the water, but show a gun and he does not stop to laugh—he goes instanter. When in a sportive mood he sometimes waits until he sees you about ready to fire, when, at the flash he dives and you see the shot spatter the watter where he has just gone down.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Twenty-four years ago John Gilbert, a Pottstown (Pa.) restaurateur, had one of his index fingers mangled in a feed cutting machine. The doctor sewed up the wound and it readily healed. The threads were removed and the finger is healing.

THE JUMBO GAME.

It will be remembered that when Jumbo was originally taken from the London Zoological garden he displayed great unwillingness to leave his companion, Alice. Tears figured in the episode, and great compassion was excited by the evidence of the elephant's affection. A Mr. Gaylord, who was with Barnum when Jumbo was bought, says that it was all arranged; that Scott, the keeper who came over with Jumbo, manœuvred the elephant in a way to give the desired effect of feeling. When it was time for him to leave and his car was ready he got the order to lie down, and down he went, and the populace wept at the thought of the elephant's unhappiness. When he was told to come away he came.

Reports from Columbus show a panic in republican circles. The republican candidate for Secretary of State is thoroughly scared and the aid of the national committee is invoked to help the failing boom. When Ohio is in danger of a republican slump, what can Harrison expect in the close republican states?

The workers of Homestead under arrest for conspiracy, treason and murder, is an illustration of what protection by means of a tariff tax can do for laboring men. The mint of money the Carnegies have spent for prosecution and persecution, for palisades and Pinkertons shows plainly the income of the company did not demand a reduction of wages. Their profits, by virtue of government bounty, warrant extravagance, and not retrenchment.

Will the apologists for negro ravishers be able to make any political capital out of the horrible affair yesterday near Mobile, Alabama? A respected citizen and his accomplished daughter were hacked in pieces by black fiends and their home burned to the ground to try to conceal the crime. Just how much of this hellish work is due to the northern firers of the negro heart for political aims and purposes, will never be known, but it is true that these crimes multiply in the midst of political campaigns.

Mr. Depew told his Brooklyn audience that "gentlemen's clothing was cheaper in America than it was in England." And that is the reason Mr. Depew had on a suit of English clothes, while he talked, and several trunks full of them at home, to be sure! He bought in London and paid advanced price purposely to test the matter. Mr. Depew forgets that he is not the only man who has bought clothes of the London tailors. The woods are full of them. Funny, isn't it?

The whole country sorrows with the gentle sufferer at the White House, and with her devoted and anxious family. It is the one beautiful trait of human nature that is not perverted by the selfishness and indifference of modern busy life—that of sympathy when heart trouble comes to another. Campaign issues are none the less important to the country, but the issue of life and death for our dear ones is apart from, and above all others. The President has universal sympathy in the affliction that has come upon his household.

While we are protecting ourselves against the competition of the sheep growers of Europe, the number of sheep, in Europe, has decreased 16 per cent., according to recent calculation by Consul-General Bourn, of Rome. If the number of sheep and the price of wool in this country had correspondingly increased, there might be a chance for some political argument in the situation. But a like decrease and decline is manifest here, and the only argument is for one of non-interference, as the efforts to boost, tear down or build up show only disastrous results.

THE VITAL POINT UNTOUCHED.

In no instance has any protection orator or editor attempted to explain why wages are higher in free trade England than in protected France or Germany. Such comparisons would possess the element of fairness. These countries are all monarchial in form of government, the land is all appropriated, population is congested, royalty and caste dominate social and business conditions and the military arm of the machinery grinds the life out of the laboring element, more or less, in them all.

With all the resources of our country, its vast extent, its favored climate and soil, its industrious and inventive people, its representative form of government, where every man is a sovereign, it is our disgrace that there is any room for debate as to comparative condition of the workers in America and the peasants of the old world. We have no right with tramps and paupers to pit against their overplus of poor and destitute. If the debate proves anything at all, it proves to our disgrace, that the producers of the wealth of this country are getting but a meager pittance for their share of it.

SOME PARK SUGGESTIONS.

Lovers of nature—and we are all her lovers to greater or less degree or we would never buy and make parks at all—hope that the commissioners of our newly-acquired possessions for such purposes will see to it that nature is left, inviolate, in the laying out of the grounds. We do not want artificial ponds, and trees in rows, and grottoes dragged in and piled up where there is nothing in natural surroundings to warrant it. We want winding, pleasant, smooth and wide driveways, sunny, green spaces where the soft sward is not forbidden the weary foot, and where birds and bees and squirrels will be lured by the "home-like" appearance for them.

The old world forests are an example to follow. The forest of Fontainebleau, 960 acres of which comprise the grounds about the palace, contains, in the whole tract, 80,000 acres, and except the perfect drives and naturally worn footpaths, it is a "forest" as sunshine, rain, and "the leaf on the mold" makes and keeps it. It is simply freed from debris, and every green and beautiful shrub that uplifts its head in the fragrant air is given place to disport itself. You can gather violets and ferns alongside the perfect macadamized roads and you can pick daisies and wild roses in the open spaces.

In the arrangement and care of our Toledo parks, which will be, one day, the pride of the city, let us follow Nature and not attempt to lead and reform her.

MISTAKES OF POLITICAL TEACHERS.

The greatest error of political orators and editors is the assumption that their hearers and readers possess no knowledge save and except such as they see fit to impart. And that they take facts and figures without question. A plausible talker can confuse and befog a plain, direct thinker, but he cannot convince him of things which he absolutely knows to be untrue. And to fail to persuade, or to mislead, on one or two points, weakens the rest of his argument and assertion.

That a newspaper says, "it was a grand speech and will make many votes for So-and-so," doesn't influence the independent reader who sees, or who heard for himself that the plea made for party policy was full of cheap clap-trap that wouldn't bear for a moment the search-light of honest analysis.

To tell the farmer he is getting rich because he consents to pay tribute to iron and coal trusts, and explain to him how it all comes about, doesn't signify, when he knows that to-morrow the interest on his mortgage is due and he hasn't money to meet it; when he knows that the men who handle and move his grain make more money out of it than he does raising, garnering and threshing it; when he knows that he plods about doing his "chores" while his amply protected brother enjoys the pleasant evening riding in his fine carriage with his family; when he knows what his wife pays for the one woolen gown she buys in a year, to protect American manufacturers, while the Flora McFlimseys of the households of those manufacturers bring home Paris and London gowns by the trunk full, the product of "foreign pauper labor," the competition with which these political teachers are so solicitous about.

Whole columns of figures to show reduced prices on high-taxed articles, the result of that taxation, do not budge him an inch when he knows, for himself, what he paid last, for tin, iron, crockery and glassware, and what he pays to-day.

Neither does the schedule of wages paid skilled men at Homestead, paraded at length and conspicuously, prove anything to the book-keeper whose weekly salary is what is paid the steel workers for one day's work, or to the women in (protected) pearl button factories, working for 37 cents a day, or in unprotected industries where they receive ten times higher wages. This, then, is the great error of our self-elected economic instructors: they forget "the plain people" have reasoning powers, and bank too much on their ignorance and credulity.

THE GEOGRAPHY OF THE GLOBE

Invites the Freest Exchange of Its Products.

Commerce is the exchange of products between different countries. If these produced the same things in kind and quality, and at the same cost, there certainly could be no such thing as commerce. Different soils, climates, and, therefore, very different productions, originate, and perpetuate commerce. The seas, lakes, rivers, gulfs, bays and inland seas, all invite commerce. And the history of civilization shows that the line of least resistance, in its conquests, has always been along the track of commerce.

We are about to celebrate the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of this continent. Without commerce this discovery could never have been made. There never have would have been any ships to sail across the ocean. There would have been no use for them. Extreme protection is an effort to destroy commerce, so far as possible. One of its chief supports, in a work of political economy has said that he somtimes wished that the ocean was covered with a sheet of fire. To this pitch of insanity, his doctrine of non-intercourse has brought him. And protectionists, generally, are much infected with a like folly; always talking about making ourselves independent of other countries; seeming to think that foreign trade is an evil to be abolished as soon as possible. The Creator of the world, in the distribution of soils, climates, peoples and productions, has not done his work well enough to suit protectionists; they try to supplement his wisdom by some of their own!

It seems to me the plainest truth in the world that trade would adjust itself between different nations, as it does between our states, without the intermeddling of fool legislators. Montesquieu said: "It seems that the heads of the greatest men become narrowed and cramped when they are assembled, and then where there are the greatest number of sages there is also the least wisdom. The truth is, legislators never made a law; it is completely out of their power. They cannot do this any more than they could legislate attraction and gravitation. The most they can do is to pass a bill, or a statute. A law, in any deep and grand sense of the word, is the creation of nature, and nature's author. Legislators should endeavor to find out what are the laws of nature, and conform to them. The grand fundamental law that should govern in the moral world is contained in the Golden Rule. Let not legislators depart from that. Let them be governed by that, and then they will soon discover that all tariff laws are robber laws; that they are a kind of declaration of war against others, and are inspired by the lowest and most short-sighted selfishness.

A daring outrage by brigands occurred in Sicily, not far from Cantania, a few days ago. A band of six malefactors, who were mounted on excellent horses and armed with Vettesli magazine rifles of the Swiss pattern, captured the Baron Spitaleri and his son and refused to release them except on payment of a large ransom. As the captives were unable to furnish the amount demanded, the brigands were about to carry the two gentlemen off to the mountains, when the Countess Giancialo, who witnessed the capture of the baron and his son, offered to go to her country house, not far distant, and fetch some money. This she did and returned with 50,000 francs. The brigands refused to be satisfied with this amount, however, and, threatening the countess with their daggers forcibly entered the house and ransacked the premises, with the result that they discovered a further sum of 110,000 francs. Having secured in all a total of 160,000 francs they released Baron Spitaleri and his son, at the same time kissing the baron's hands. All the culprits are now believed to be in custody.

SALTY TESTIMONY.

awhile ago talking business on this thing and we want to know what can be done."

Here another break was noticed.

Tanner—"I was telling him that I knew where 11 votes could be had for $5,500. "Is not that right?"

Daly—"That's right."

T—"We know what we are talking about and you cannot get it through without these votes."

L—"We have had promises from enough to get it through and it is strange if they go back on us."

T—"You can't get it through and I will bet you $100 to $10 you can't. I am talking business. I guess Daly knows what I am talking about. How about Morris?"

L—"Morris is all right and we have several others on our side, among whom is Billy Gill."

Daly—"We are powerless to do anything now."

T—"We don't belong to the eleven."

L—"Suppose I pay this money, what assurance have I that the ordinance will be passed?"

D—"If we don't get the eleven votes you can get the stuff back."

The whole transcript continues in this strain from beginning to end. According to this Tanner said that a combination had been formed of members of the council just like a lodge, and controlled the vote of the council; that he was not a member of it, however; that they both knew who the members were and that they had all taken a solemn obligation to stand together. The interview ended about 5 o'clock and Tanner and Daly went out and got Gill and the three returned.

"Mr. Lorenz said he understood the boys were talking business on the matter. He said he thought Gill was going to stay with them; Gill said the people over the river were dead set against his pipe line; that he had to stand in with these people and wanted the matter dropped until after convention; Gill said that Lorenz need not be afraid of Daly and Tanner, what they said would go.

"Tanner said he had informed Lorenz that it could be put through for $5,500; Gill said that what the others said was right; Lorenz said that he did not know but what three or four of them were after the stuff; Daly said he could have the thing through for $5,500 and that it would go for nothing less; Lorenz wanted to understand that if the ordinance passed that the Paragon did not get theirs through; they agreed to meet at Hockenberger's that night before council meeting and close the matter up.

To-day's Testimony.

Yesterday's developments is the topic of conversation on the streets, and long before court convened this morning, the corridors of the old court house were packed with people anxious to get a seat in the court room.

Promptly at 9 o'clock the court bailiff opened court and the wheels of justice began to turn.

"Mr. Bassett, did you note the arrival of the various parties?"

"I did."

"I will ask you if there was an interview on June 29?"

"Yes, sir; at 9:05 a. m."

"Who were present?"

"Mr. Lorenz and Ransom Swain, the councilman, up stairs, and Mr. Machen and myself down stairs."

Mr. Bassett then read the interview as he took it down.

"Mr. Lorenz said to Swain, 'what I want to see you about is this: We have been talking with some of the boys, and have come to the conclusion that we don't know where we stand. Tanner and some of the other boys were down. They told us that there was a combination of 11 votes, and that they want $5,500 to get the ordinance through. How is it?' Swain said he did not know for sure, but if the arrangement was as they said, it would have to go. Last year he said he was not in it, but this year he knew more about what was going on."

L.—"Daly and Tanner claim that they control 11 votes. There were 10 voted against, and now they claim the 10 will vote for it. Now, will they do it for that amount?"

"Swain said that was about the state of affairs.

"Mr. Lorenz said there was something of the kind before.

"Swain said not that he knew of.

"Lorenz wanted to know if he could rely upon what the others had told him. Swain said he could. Lorenz said the amount was high. Swain said he thought it was the purpose of the Pluto to get the franchise and then sell out to the Standard. Sawin said that so far as he was concerned he wanted to see them get it through. Lorenz said they were here to do business, and instead of aiding they were opposing them. Swain said the boys knew what they were doing. Lorenz wanted to know if they could deliver the 11 votes. Swain said that if they would pay so much for property he could get it and if he did not get the property he need not pay. Lorenz said they had been fooling around a long while; that they were getting a little anxious, as they had received notice of an advance in the price of pipe. What he wanted to know was whether the ordinance could be put through at once. Tanner had said that the ordinance would not go through unless they delivered the votes. He wanted to know if Tanner knew what he was talking about. Swain said Tanner and Daly were old councilmen and knew their business. Lorenz said he wanted to be sure, as it was money in their pockets to get it through, and he did not want any mistake. Swain wanted to know if there was anybody around. He said it was ticklish business and did not want it to get out that he was saying anything about the deal. He knew that there was a councilman on; that he had objected at first to going into such business; that it would jeopardize his reputation; that all parties would have to proceed with caution. He said that the Paragon had been instrumental in opposing the Pluto's ordinance. Lorenz said he understood that the Paragon refused to pay anything. Swain said that was a mistake. He continued that the combination had been formed and if they all stood by their pledge there was no reason why they could not succeed.

"Mr. Lorenz said that there were other parties outside of the combination whom he wanted to see. Swain wanted to know if he had the names of those who would vote for the ordinance.

Lorenz said he had, and spoke of Neuendorf, Schmuhl, Tanner, Gill, Doner, Daley, Swain, Rutherford, Taylor and Manchester. Swain wanted to know if that was all. Mr. Lorenz said there were others who had been with them all along. Lorenz said that Coleman was not in the combination.

Swain—"No, Coleman is a darn dirty scamp. He don't do what he promises to do."

Lorenz—"He voted for the street railway ordinance. Who is he working for, Robison?"

(Here another break occurred.)

Swain—"He left the chair, ostensibly to go to Chicago, but he did not go. He played us a dirty trick and we have got it in for him. I do not want anything said about the matter."

(Another break.)

Lorenz—"I have my idea about the amount in this matter."

Swain said that Paragon had brought a big pressure to bear on the boys, and one minute they were willing to vote one way and then another.

Mr. Swain left the office at 9:45, which completed the conversation between Mr. Swain and Mr. Lorenz at that time.

Judge Ritchie requested that the testimony be withdrawn from the jury, for the reason that the defendant was not present and that the conversation was not given complete, but only broken and in part.

Mr. Barber stated that they produced a witness to tell what he heard, and he did not think that the evidence should be excluded.

The request to rule the evidence from the jury was overruled.

This concluded the direct examination and the defense proceeded to cross-examine.

"Mr. Bassett, when you speak of Mr. Daly, you don't mean to say that you know he was the person to give the conversation."

"I credited it to Mr. Daly."

"Why?"

"Because I took it to be Mr. Daly in conversation with Mr. Lorenz."

"Did you see him?"

"I did not."

"Do you know Mr. Daly?"

"Slightly."

"Did you see him?"

"I did not."

"Did you see Gill and Tanner?"

"I did not."

"Then how do you know that the man credited to be Mr. Daly was the defendant?"

"Well, I credited the words in my report to the man addressed as Mr. Daly, and because I distinguished the vioce."

"Might you not have credited to Mr. Daly what was said by Mr. Gill or Mr. Tanner?"

"I might; yes, sir."

"Could you see the parties?"

"Not from where I was sitting."

"Describe the place, please."

Mr. Bassett gave the same description as before.

"Then, Mr. Bassett, you heard certain conversations and took them down, and do not know who the parties were further than the names you heard uttered by Mr. Lorenz?"

"I do not."

"That's all."

Mr. Barber in rebuttal asked whose voices he did recognize, to which Mr. Bassett replied that he recognized the vioces of Gill, Tanner and Lorenz.

Mr. Brophy then said: "The prosecution asked were there any other voices aside from Lorenz, Gill, Tanner, and Daly. Now, did you mean to say that you knew Daly's voice?"

"I said there was another voice, which I took to be that of Mr. Daly."

"That's all."

The state called August Machen, the member of the Pluto Oil company, who Mr. Bassett testified was in the cellar.

Mr. Machen testified to the objects and purposes of the Pluto Oil company; also that the officers are: president, Ferdinand Machen; vice president, Henry E. Lorenz; secretary, A. W. Machen; treasurer, Geo. E. Lorenz. With Chas. Lorenz, in addition, the foregoing were directors.

He testified to the introduction of the ordinance in the council.

"You may state whether you were approached by any member of the council relative to your ordinance after it had been introduced."

Mr. Ritchie objected to the question, which was overruled.

"Who, if anybody?"

"Do you mean to convey who talked to be about the ordinance?"

"Who, if anybody, approached you in reference to the passage of your ordinance?"

"Charles Neuendorf."

"Where?"

"At his store."

"When?"

'On the evening succeeding the date of the introduction of the ordinance in the council."

"Tell what took place."

"I went to Neuendorf's store to find out about the passage of our ordinance. He began talking aout it being a big thing for us. He said the ordinance could be passed. He took a paper from his desk and wrote the figures 500 and said 'how will that hit?' I said, 'what do you mean?' He said, '$500 each for 11 votes.' I said I could not listen to anything like that. I said I did not see how he could have eleven when I had ten pledged. He said I thought so. Then he took a paper and wrote the names of those who would vote with him."

"Who were they?"

"Neuendorf, Tanner, Doner, Daly, Gill, Schmuhl, Swain. I then drove down to Lorenz' residence."

"Was there any other conversation with Mr. Neuendorf?"

"There was."

"Where?"

"After coming down from Mr. Lorenz' residence I met Mr. Neuendorf in front of Hockenberger's saloon. I repeated my statement that it was out of the question to do anything of that kind; that we were going to pass the ordinance any how. He then suggested that if we would not give up any money perhaps we would give up some stock. We walked to the council rooms, and when we arrived I told him it was no use to talk; that we were going to carry the ordinance any how; that we could make out the stock to the party who they would send around."

"I will ask you if you were present at the interview that took place at the office on Jefferson street?"

"I was."

"What experience have you in stenography?"

"I used to follow that business."

Mr. Machen testified that he could read and write short hand, and that by some practice could work up quite a speed. He also testified as to the location of the ordinance as described by Mr. Bassett.

He testified that he was in the cellar with Mr. Bassett and heard the conversations as they occurred. He saw Mr. Bassett take down the notes and followed him to some extent, in short hand. He knew Gill and Tanner. He kept the time of the arrival of the persons as they came to the office.

"Who came first?"

"Frank Tanner."

"Tell the jury from your recollections what took place between Mr. Lorenz and Mr. Tanner."

Mr. Machen then related in substance what Mr. Bassett presented yesterday in his stenographic report:

That Tanner said that we could get the ordinance through for $5,500 of the long green; that the stuff could be paid to John Daly; that Lorenz said he did not want anything to do with Daly; Tanner wanted to know if he (Lorenz) belonged to any secret society; that the oath of the combination was just as strong; Mr. Lorenz said he could get the ordinance through anyway; that Tanner wanted Lorenz to go and see Daly at his house, but but Mr. Lorenz said if they wanted him to see Daly to bring him to the office; Tanner said Daly was out to the ball game and that he would go and get him. Not long after, Mr. Machen testified, Tanner returned with a man by the name of Daly.

"Did you hear what was said?"

"Yes, sir; I heard every word."

Mr. Machen then continued that Tanner started the conversation by informing Daly what had been said previously; that the ordinance would go through for $5,500, to which Daly said that what Tanner said was right. Daly said he would not have come to the office if he did not know what he was talking; that Tanner kept repeating his statement about $5,500, long green, and Daly called him down, telling him that he had repeated that enough.

Mr. Machen went on to say that Mr. Lorenz questioned their ability to deliver the votes, whereupon Tanner said that if the votes were not delivered they could have the stuff returned: that they went on to discuss the probable result of the vote, naming those who would vote for the ordinance; that they would have Morris, Schmidt, Lee and Walker, who, with the ten Tanner was to deliver, would suffice to suspend the rules and carry the ordinance. Mr. Lorenz mentioned Felker, and Tanner laughed as though this was a joke. Mr. Lorenz also mentioned Rutherford, to which Daly said Rutherford would vote for it if he said so. Mr. Lorenz then said that Gill was a friend of theirs, to which Tanner said they would get Gill, and that these would make it more binding; that some one slipped to the 'phone and called up MacGahan's office and asked for Gill; that the two left the office to return by 6 o'clock.

Mr. Machen continued that Mr. Gill and Mr. Tanner and the same party by the name of Daly, returned to the office.

During this interview Tanner repeated his statement about the $5,500 to take the ordinance off the table. Lorenz said to Gill that the boys had been there talking and that he seemed to know what they meant; that people often undertake to do more than they were able to carry out. Mr. Lorenz asked Gill why he did not stand by the ordinance, to which Gill said that if he was not in the ring he could vote for the ordinance, and that if he did not stay with the boys he would get skinned alive. They said the could get a quorum that night; Gill said whatever Daly says goes; he is the grand mogul, and that if he did not stand by them he would get h—l knocked out of him.

Mr. Machen testified that Tanner said there was no use to talk further if Mr. Lorenz would not talk business; that unless the money was planked down it was useless to talk any longer. He testified that it was in this conversation that Daly called Tanner down about his remarks about the long green.

The defense then cross-examined.

"Mr. Machen, when did this first conversation take place?"

"On or about the 23d of May."

"Where was it?"

"At Neuendorf's store."

"What did you say?"

"I wanted to know why they were not going to vote for the ordinance and went around to find out. Frank Stager had told him that the ordinance was not going to be passed."

"Did not Neuendorf say that he was not going to vote for it because Hartford had requested him not to?"

"No, sir. He said that Hartford had been to him, but that Hartford is a kicker on general principles."

"Did you not say that you knew how these things are done and was willing to do something for the boys?"

"I did not."

"Did you say that we are willing to pay the boys for it?"

"I did not."

"Did not Mr. Neuendorf say that his vote could not be bought?"

"He did not."

"Did you not say that you did not want the Paragon ordinance to go through?"

"I did."

"Did you not offer Mr. Neuendorf so much stock?"

"I did not."

"Did you not offer him money?"

"I did not."

"Did you offer him money at another conversation?"

"I did not."

"Now, Mr. Machen, did you not see Mr. Daly in the Pluto office?"

"I did not."

"Have you not had trouble with Daly?"

"Mr. Lorenz did."

'Who sent for Mr. Tanner to come to your office?"

"Nobody sent for him, but he came on a mutual agreement."

"Was Mr. Daly sent for?"

"No, sir."

Mr. Machen testified that the office was prepared for the interview on the morning of the 21st.

"Did not Mr. Lorenz, during the interview, offer $5,500 if they would knock out the Paragon ordinance?"

"He did not."

"Who did you go to see about your ordinance?"

"Manchester, Doner, Neuendorf, Lee, Gill, Schmidt and others."

"Mr. Machen, how often have you read the transcript of this report?"

"Only once, since the grand jury met, and twice before."

He testified that he read portions of it on several occasions, and that he gave up his copy after the report of the grand jury.

This concluded the cross-examination and the state called Frank W. Smith, but he was not present and Geo. E. Lorenz was called. He gave the substance of the interviews had with the councilmen, which was corroborative of the testimony of Messrs. Machen and Bassett.

He testified to Tanner's statement that John Daly could deliver 11 votes for $5,500, and that he tried to get the names from them. Also, that Tanner said the Pluto was not the first on the list, as they were going to charge the Paragon $11,000, but the Pluto, being a Toledo concern, they had cut the price directly in two; that Tanner said they were bound together by oath.

Mr. Ritchie moved that all the evidence relating to the interview held June 21 be withdrawn from the jury on the ground that the indictment charges with occurrences on June 29.

Mr. Barber held that it was a part of the conspiracy, and was a part of the crime charged in the indictment; that it is not necessary to confine the evidence to one date.

The court held that the transactions referred to should be held to one date and fixed by that.

Judge Ritchie withdrew the objection.

Before taking a recess the court enjoined the jury not to read the newspaper reports of the trial.

During the noon hour subpoenas were issued for Councilmen Neuendorf, Gill, Tanner, Doner, Rutherford and Taylor, to be present at 2 o'clock.

When court opened Mr. Lorenz resumed his testimony. He said he endeavored to get the names from Tanner. He mentioned the names of the members who voted against the ordinance the night before. He remarked that Gill and Rutherford were all right. Tanner stated that Rutherford was all right if he said so. In the afternoon Tanner and Daly returned, accompanied by Gill. He introduced the subject in the same manner as related by Mr. Machen. Gill said that what the boys said went. With regard to the Paragon ordinance, Daly said that had nothing to do with the present case; that if the Pluto would put up the $5,500 the ordinance would go, otherwise it would not.

He testified that they then would guarantee to get enough votes to take the ordinance off of the table, that night.

As to the Paragon ordinance he said that it was to be a part of the agreement that it should not pass if the Pluto ordinance did, but he did not remember exactly as to that amount. The price for that he said had been fixed at $11,000, and that they were going to charge the Northwestern Natural Gas company $40,000 for their ordinance.

The defense then took the witness.

Mr. Brophy, conducting the cross-examination, wanted to know what the witness had in his hand, to which he replied that it was a memorandum.

"What kind of a memorandum?"

"Of notes taken of the conversation had with the councilmen."

"Was it taken at the time."

"It was."

"Did you send for Neuendorf?"

"I did."

"Whom did you send?"

"My brother."

"How many times?"

"Two times."

"When I do not remember."

"Did you send for Mr. Tanner?"

"I did."

"How many times."

"Once."

"Did you ever have conversation with Mr. Tanner?"

"I did."

"Where?"

"At his office."

"What was said?"

"I spoke to him about the passage of the ordinance, and requested him to do what he could to get it through."

"Did you not ask him why he did not vote for your ordinance?"

"I don't know but what I did."

"Did he not say that he thought it was some Standard Oil scheme?"

"He might have said so, yes."

"Did you not say Frank will give you $300 to vote for the ordinance?"

"I? No, sir."

"Did you ever send for Mr. Schmuhl?"

"I did. I think I gave my brother instructions to see as many of the councilmen as possible and tell them to call on me."

Mr. Brophy then questioned as to his sending for each man, to which the witness responded that he sent for each one. Rutherford promised to work for the ordinance and vote for it.

"Now, Mr. Lorenz, did you say to Gill, Tanner or Daly that you would give them $5,500 if they would pass your ordinance and knock out the Paragon ordinance?"

"No, sir."

Frank M. Schmidt, bookkeeper for the Pluto Oil company, was called by the state. Mr. Schmidt testified to being present when Frank Tanner came to the office. That he came at 2:20 p. m. He was in the front part of the office, when Tanner went through, and passed through to the back office, after being in just 21 minutes. He returned at 4:37 p. m., accompanied by Mr. Daly, and both left at 4:58.

They returned at 6:05 with Mr. Gill. When they returned he was in the basement with the stenographer, and heard what was said above. Messrs. Gill, Daly, Tanner, and Lorenz took part in the conversation. His head was about two feet from the hole in the floor. He paid no attention to anything but the conversation. He then made a statement to the jury of what was said, which was substantially corroborative of what Messrs. Lorenz, Bassett and Machen had testified to.

A Scotch journal, in a recent issue, reports that not long since a gentleman, who was on a visit to the coast, while bathing, was seized with a cramp and sank, being two minutes below water. When rescued he was thought to be dead, but after two applications of the electric current animation was restored. The current was passed between the nape of the neck and the heart.

A TOUGH'S SOLILOQUY.

"All der world's a prize ring,
An' all der men and women only sluggers,
Dey has deir counters an' deir uppercuts;
An' one nibs in his time knocks many out,
An' gits der belt, der champion. Fust thing, der babby,
Bawlin' an' scrappin' in der nurse's arms;
Den der kickin' school kid, like a dray mule,
Dat don't know where's his feed; an' den der lover,
Singin' show songs, sich as 'She's my Annie, I'm her Joe,' 'bout his best girl. Den a slugger,
Full o' stale beer, an' smellin' like der keg,
Sp'ilin' for scraps, ready to do anybody
What's got der gall ter stand afore him;
For he's a crack-a-jack, an when he gits in
His right dere's somet'in's got ter tumble, see!
Wid bulldog mug an' jawbone of der jack,
He fights his last battle. Der last bell rings,
An' he's a knocked-out, sore ex-champion,
Wid bruises on der nose an' pains inside;
Der right-'an' glove he used, a size too small
Fer his swelled duke, and his hoarse slugger voice
Changin' to what kin no more skeer the old gang—
A knock-down blow itself. Ex-champion!
So ends his bruising, bloody history.
A busted crack-a-jack, a reminiscence,
Sans youth, sans bluff, sans sand, sans all but booze."

KERNEL PETE'S DAUGHTERS.

"Paul, why don't yer get married?"

Kernel Pete, the man who asked the question, had been in town a week on business. Business relations had thrown us together till he had become quite familiar in his peech to me. He had also made the discovery that I was 35 and single; also that I had a little cash laid up for wet weather.

"I hardly know," was my answer, "unless it's because I have never found the woman who was willing to grant me that privilege."

"Haw, haw, haw! You jest come down to my house. I've got three of the pertest gals yer ever seed. Now I've tuck a fancy to yer, an' if yer'll come down yer can have choice of the whole kit, exceptin' it be Liz—she's been teacnin' school an' her marm's kinder figgerin' on marryin' her to a lawyer or some other big gun. But arter all if she could see yer once I believe she'd jest as soon give Liz to yer as to a lawyer. Will you come?"

I wanted to tell him no; that I had no desire to see one of the whole kit; that I didn't want to marry a girl whose father was a heathen; but he stood six feet in his socks, had muscle like iron and a reputation of resenting anything he considered an insult by wiping the ground with the person of the offender, so I merely said:

"May be."

"By Jucks! that's talk! When'll yer be thar?"

"I don't known—there's such a rush of business at present."

"Can't yer tell me before I leave town?"

"May be."

He left, saying he would call in again before he went home. But our business had terminated, and I pointed 'Kernel Pete" out to a cheap boy. After the "Kernel" had called three times and had been told three times by the boy that I was away on business, he departed for his home.

Time flew; "Kernel Pete was forgotten and business called me into the country. One evening I found myself in a sparsely-settled district, with the shades of night gathering around me. Footsore and weary I approached a rickety cabin to ask for a night's lodging. When I gave vent to the customary "hello!" three dogs came yelping out at me, and the faces of four women pressed against the inside of the cabin window. After the faces inside and the dogs outside had sized me up, one of the faces disappeared. Then the door was opened by a little old woman, with a handkerchief pinned over her head, who called the dogs off and asked me what I wanted. I told her that I was seeking shelter for the night.

"Waal," she said, "my old man ain't to hum, but he'll be here purty soon, so come in. I guess we can keep you."

As I started in the other three faces vanished from the window, and three girls ran giggling and tittering out of the back door of the cabin.

The cabin had two rooms. One room, the room I was in, served as kitchen, dining-room, sitting room and bed room. The other room, as I surmised and afterwards learned, was used mostly for stowing away any chance "company" that might remain over night.

The old woman set about preparing supper, and in a short time one of the girls came giggling into the house and announced the information that 'Pa was comin', and then ran out again to join the others who were now peeping around at me through the open door. Glancing down the road in the direction that "pa" was said to be coming, I saw a tall, heavy-set man, whose appearance filled me with vague forebodings. As he drew near I recognized in him the person of Kernel Pete! My first impulse was to ignominiously flee. Then I remembered my tired muscles and tried to console myself with the thought that possibly he had forgotten me.

The illusion was soon dispelled, for he recognized me instantly.

"Waal, by Jucks!" he cried, as he grasped me warmly by the hand. "Yer come at last! The ole woman an' the gals said they knowed yer'd never come, but I said I knowed you'd would. Ole woman, here's the feller I told yer was comin' to marry one of our gals. Hyar, gals! come right in hyar."—St. Louis Star Sayings.

IN A MUSEUM OF HORRORS.

Implements of Torture Captured by the Society to Protect Children.

To those whose pathways lie on the sunny side of life childhood is a beautiful, merry past, when the skies were very blue and the sunshine very bright and happy, and childish sports beguiled the hours as they fled away, says the Philadelphia Times.

With only loving memories of boyhood or girlhood in the old home, where mother bustled cheerily about or father sat reading his paper in the big armchair, it is hard to realize that life has a dark side; nevertheless, one-half the world is always in shadow. In this darker hemisphere there are hundreds of little ones whose lives begin in sunless misery, over whose cradle no evening lulaby is sung, loving kisses never close the baby's eyelids, "mother's big man" and "mother's little housekeeper" are strangers in shadowland. Children are there, not sunny-haired, bright-eyed, laughing little people, for blows are given instead of kisses and beatings replace the language of kindness.

On the wall in a little whitewashed room toward the rear of the beautiful new building occupied by the Society to Protect Children from Cruelty, there hangs a strange assortment of instruments of torture, collected at various times in the history of the society. Gifted with tongues, the old battered violins would speak and the clubs beat out a requiem of misery endured by little children whose life is just begun.

"And yet," a big whip from its position far up on the wall seems to say, "our silence is more eloquent than words. My three sharp tongues can tell the story of a little boy 7 years old lashed daily, and that big rusty knife just across has been to court." The weapon was taken down from a corner where it was trying to hide its cruel blade behind an old battered violin, and little by little there came to light the story of a tot of 5 years old who had been cruelly stabbed by her mother, and all because of a small lump of sugar that little Katie pleaded for.

The mother, when arraigned, listened with stolid indifference to the charge, and the only sorrow she exhibited arose from the fact that the child didn't die. Fifteen dollars would pay the funeral expenses, and then Katie would be out of the way for good. The woman coolly acknowledged beating the oldest girl, Annie, with a wooden club, "because she breathed too hard in the night."

At the word "club" a great big wooden fellow swung on its nail, and knocked down a mason's hammer accustomed to pounding childish flesh until the society arrested its movements.

Of all the many curios the museum contains whips are vastly in the majority. Big broad straps under which the flesh quivered and writhed in unspeakable agony hang side by side with thin thongs of leather which bite like adders and sting like scorpions.

One big cart whip was used daily on four little children, who, on being questioned, answered: "Father, he uses the cart-whip. Mother takes the stove-lifter or clothes-prop or anything."

These children were all sent to good homes, and the eldest, Mary Ann, is now a lay sister in a Catholic institution.

A big pleated herd whip answered to No. 1,270 and confessed a still sadder history of a home where rum reigned supreme and love long since had sadly stolen away.

Baby Annie was taken out daily by an older girl to collect alms. The money made in this way, increased by the earnings of the older children, amounted to $30 a week, all of which went for drink. The furniture in the house consisted of a few tumble-down chairs, an old settee and a bed of rags.

Baby Annie was brought in after a day's begging and was held by the heels over a fire. Although benumbed with rum a little spark of humanity left in the father's heart asserted itself, but his remonstrances were met with the threat: "If ye don't shut up I'll dash her brains out against yers." A worn-out accordion, three dilapidated violins, and an opium outfit have seen some strange days.

Two tin signs are relics of wily impostors. One reads: "Ladies and gents, please have pity on this poor boy. He was crippled in Paris. He is the only support of his family. Do not forget him."

Under a pathetic picture of a mother hugging a babe to her breast, with a whole train of other children hanging to her skirts, are these words: "Ladies and gents, have pity on a father of a family. I am burned with vitrol. I am crippled and not able to work. Please help us if you can."

This tin arrangement was carried by an old man skillfully made up as a terribly dilapidated cripple.

These are but few of the horrible secrets of the little whitewashed room, and they weave but a thread in the tragedy played out by little children on the real stage of life. They are but faint glimpses into shadowland where misery and cruelty are chief actors.

THE BEE IN THE MAILS.

Foreign bees without pedigrees may be admitted to the United States free of duty. The secretary of the treasury has so decided. Until the last tariff bill was passed bees from abroad came in gratis as "animals imported for breeding purposes." The McKinley law declared that this ruling should only apply to animals "regularly entered in recognized herd books." Accordingly bees were assessed 20 per cent. ad valorem because they had no pedigrees. The beekeepers protested and carried their point.

Some time ago the postoffice department declared that bees were "unmailable" on the ground that they would be likely to sting people if they got loose. The beekeepers secured the recall of this regulation by proving that the packages employed could not be broken. Most of them use for purposes of transportation an ingenious wooden box with a sliding cover, invented by Dr. Benton, an expert attached to the department of agriculture. It is four inches long and is divided into three communicating compartments. The compartment at one end is filled with soft candy for the insects to feed upon; the one at the other end has holes for ventilation, while the middle compartment is a dark chamber for the occupants to crawl into when it is cold. In such a receptacle bees can be sent around the world and will reach their destination in good health and ready to fly to the nearest flowers for honey. Each box will hold a queen and from 12 to 20 workers. Before mailing it is secured with rubber bands or put in a strong envelope.—Washington Star.

In connection with the Egyptian nations, the Gnostics, as well as some of the early Christian fathers, speak of Christ as the scarabaeus and symbolize him as a man with a beetle's head. The Egyptians always embalmed this sacred insect.

A shark recently washed ashore at Midian, British Columbia, had two distinct tails, three perfect eyes and what appeared to the rudiment of a fin or flipper hanging to the under jaw. It will be mounted and sent to the world's fair.

The only known lady chime-player, it is stated, is Miss Bertha Thomas, assistant organist of Grace church, New York. She doesn't have to climb into the steeple to play the chimes, which she handles from below by the aid of an electrical device.

In the subtreasury in New Yrok there is on deposit to-day more than $3,000,000 representing outstanding money orders, and of this amount more than $2,000,000 represents money orders which are overdue and which may never be presented for payment.

The beautiful and daring wife of Lieutenant Peary, who braved the rigors and perils of a winter in the Arctic regions, and the civilized woman who has been nearer the North Pole than has any other of her sex and culture, is said to be only about 23 years of age.

No president of the United States was born in New York city, but two of the 23 died there. One president, one ex-president, and one occupant of presidential office during the period of four years for which his opponent was elected survive the contests of more than a century.

There was, according to the federal census of 1890, 1,769,000 male inhabitants of voting age in New York two years ago. Of these 685,000 were foreign born. About two-thrids of them (416,000) were naturalized, 22,000 had taken out their first papers, and 192,000 were at that time aliens.

Both the Kurds and the Cassacks believe that Ararat is guarded by an unearthly being and that no man can ascend the peak and live. They have a somewhat contrary opinion, however, as to what kind of spirits are on guard, the former claiming that the devil is guard supreme, the latter that angels are on watch.

The common daphne grown in flower gardens is one of the most deadly poisons known to the botanist. Three or four of the berries will kill a man as quickly as strychnine, and one has been known to kill a child in half an hour. There are numerous flowering plants which are perfectly harmless, both in leaf, flower and seed, and so long as these can be readily obtained there is no excuse for a florist allowing such a plant as the daphne to grow on his premises.

Gray squirrels have no more deadly enemy than their red brothers. Last week Peter Bovee was hunting in the region of Danville, Pa., and witnessed a fight to the death between a gray and a red squirrel. The latter whipped, as the red always do, and took possession of the vanquished squirrel's hole in a chestnut tree, thereby getting not only a home, but a larder already well stored with sweet chestnuts for the whole winter's use. That was a big prize to be won by one fight.

The little village of Elm, in the canton of Glaris, Switzerland, although situated 3,300 feet above the level of the sea, is so encompassed by mountains, 8,000 feet high, that during six months in the year it is an entire stranger to the rays of the sun. One of these mountains has an aperture pierced through it near the top, called St. Martin's hole. Through this hole the sun shines on the village during four weeks, together, about the time of the equinox, every spring and autumn, as through a natural telescope.

Why is it that Strictly Pure White Lead is the best paint?

Because it will outlast all other Paints, make a handsomer finish, give better protection to the wood, and the first cost will be less.

If a color other than white is wanted, tint the paint with the National Lead Co.'s

Pure White Lead Tinting Colors.

These colors are sold in small cans, one pound being sufficient to tint twenty-five pounds of strictly pure White Lead to the desired shade.

Be Careful

to use only old and well-known brands of white lead. The market is flooded with adulterated and "so-called" white leads. The following brands are always strictly pure and are established by the test of years:

ANCHOR (Cincinnati)
ARMSTRONG & McKELVY (Pittsburgh)
BEYMER-BAUMAN (Pittsburgh)
COLLIER (St. Louis)
CORNELL (Buffalo)
DAVIS-CHAMBERS (Pittsburgh)
ECKSTEIN (Cincinnati)
FAHNESTOCK (Pittsburgh)
MORLEY (Cleveland)
RED SEAL (St. Louis)
SHIPMAN (Chicago)
SOUTHERN (St. Louis and Chicago)

These brands of strictly pure White Lead and the National Lead Co.'s Tinting colors are for sale by the best dealers in paints everywhere.

If you are going to paint, it will pay you to send to us for a book containing information that may save you many a dollar; it will only cost you a postal card to do so.

DO YOU WANT GOLD?

Cripple Creek is not a health resort. It is a wealth resort. Quite a difference! Location, near Pike's Peak, in Colorado. Gold—bright, yellow gold, is found at grass roots and in the rock formation.

Reliable experts claim this is to-day the richest camp in Colorado. Assays average $100 per ton, and have run as high as $5,000. One hundred people a day are now rushing to Fremont, chief town of the district.

The chance of a life-time is worth looking after!

You can get there quickly and comfortably by taking Santa Fe Route. Only line with no change of cars from Chicago, Kansas City and other principal cities to Florissant, nearest railroad station, with daily stages, to Fremont.

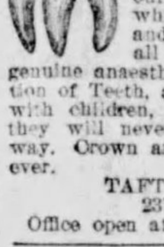
EIGHT ($8) DOLLARS



For Eight Dollars we will make you the best set of teeth that can be made on rubber, no better made no matter how much you pay.

And remember we are the only dentists in the city that make our own Vitalized Air and Gas, which makes it purer and safer, and which is acknowledged by all to be the only true and genuine anaesthetic for the Painless Extraction of Teeth, and especially is this the case with children, and if once taken by them they will never have teeth out any other way. Crown and bridge work cheaper than ever.

Heiskell's Ointment
Is a positive cure for all forms of
SKIN DISEASE.

We base this assertion on our observation of over thirty years, in which time a very large number and variety of Skin Diseases have been reported to us as cured, by the simple use of Heiskell's Ointment, without the aid of internal remedies. Many of these were cases of long duration, that had resisted the treatment of the most eminent medical talent in this and other countries. Heiskell's Ointment seems never to have failed in a single instance.

AS HAPPY AS CAN BE.

The Twin Babies of Mrs. C. M. Holbrook.

How They Came To Be Plump and Healthy Youngsters.

When Born They Weighed Four Pounds Each—Fond of Best Food.

They say that man is born to sorrow as the sparks fly upward.

But many of these sorrows are of his own creation—or his parents'.

How few of us passed the first five years of life without suffering.

How many people there are who have been chronic sufferers from childhood, because they started in life's way weak and sickly, and just because they were improperly nourished.

The improper feeding of children causes

Happy as the Day is Long.

more suffering than many mothers dream of.

"My twin babies," says Mrs. C. M. Holbrook, of Cherry Creek, N. Y., "weighed but four pounds each when born, and were very delicate, but now, thanks to lactated food, they are plump and healthy as can be. They are just as happy and good natured as they look, and fond of the food."

The reason that lactated food is so universally successful in such cases is simply that it is as nutritious as it is easily digested and assimilated. Next to pure mother's milk it is the best possible food for the little one, and experience has shown that babies who leave the mother's breast thrive better upon it, and become healthier and stronger than when fed in any other way.

The principal element of woman's milk is sugar of milk, and this is the basis of lactated food. With it is combined the nutritious elements of the great cereals, wheat, barley and oats, and the addition of salts found in mother's milk make it a perfect substitute. Thousands of mothers, the country over, have written their unsolicited testimony of its great worth, and thousands of happy, smiling, healthful babies are the living evidence of what it does.

UP TO THE TIMES.

Toledo Germans Will Put on the Drama Columbus.

Five Acts and Two Tableaux—The Entire Cast for the Production and Something About the Action of the Play.

Some of the best known Germans in Toledo will don the garbs and trappings of the fifteenth century—wigs, tights and grease paint, and strut the histrionic boards in honor of the only man who is in it to-day, Christopher Columbus. The great theatrical event takes place Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings, October 19, 20 and 21, at St. Mary's hall, when the historical German drama, "Columbus," will be presented. The cast is made up of good material and the friends of the embryonic actors will have a good chance to act the critic.

C. J. Kirschner will play Christopher Columbus himself, and as he has Columbus' whiskers and something of his look and air as one sees him depicted, as well as considerable oratorical ability, he will be a grand success. Albert Steger is cast for Diego, his son. Albert Neuhausel will essay the part of Fernando de Talavera, the chancellor and astronomer royal, while Fred Neuhausel, who comes from the same school of actors, will interpret Diego Mendiz, one of Columbus' seamen, who wanted to turn back.

Bartholo, Columbus' brother, will be played by William Muehleisen. Miss Emma Walker will assume the role of Isabella, Queen of Spain, and Ferdinand Thiele will play her honorable spouse, Ferdinand, King of Spain, a gentleman by the same name, but no relation.

Don Alonso de Quintanilla, secretary of the treasury and keeper of the royal wampum and poker chips—that's stretching his title a little bit, but it's a long one—will be played by C. T. Bauer.

Juan Perez Marchena O. S. F. Superior, whatever that is, will be assumed by Math Gilsdorf. Fra Isidor, another O. S. F., will be played by C. J. Reuscher.

George Wideman will appear as Lorenzo Fernandez, a head something or other to the queen. Nich. Schuettringer will play Pedro Gonzalez.

Jasper Erner is cast for Captain Martin Alonso Penzon, of the caravel Pinta. Wm. Vollmayer and August Rumpf will be sailors, Frank Sean a cabin boy, and Joseph Mueller the page to the king.

There will be five acts, opening at the Franciscan convent La Rabida, near Palos, Spain, in 1486, and changing to the royal palace at Cordova, the royal court, the deck of Columbus' ship Santa Maria, the American shore, concluding with two tableaux, the landing and erecting of the cross and the reception of Columbus at Barcelona. It will be a big thing. Why? Look at the cast and subject.

When catarrh attacks a person of scrofulous diathesis, the disease is almost sure to become chronic. The only efficacious cure, therefore, is Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which expels scrofula from the system, and the catarrh soon follows suit. Local treatment is only a waste of time.

DENYING RUMORS.

Carnegie Company Is Kept Very Busy Nowadays.

Homestead, Pa., Oct. 12.—At the Carnegie mill to-day the officials stated that the telegraphic announcement in a morning paper from Washington asserting that the contracts for armor plate for the cruiser New York had been taken from the Carnegies and transferred to the Bethlehem works was a lie made out of whole cloth. The also said that the announcement that the men who had been engaged by the Carnegies in the manufacture of this special work had gone to the Bethlehem plant to work is untrue. They assert that they know where every one of their employes that was engaged in this class of work is at present and that none have gone to Bethlehem.

Thirty-two steel workers from Knoxville, Tenn., arrived at the plant this morning. The officials claim this force is composed of experienced steel workers and feel jubilant over the acquisition.

If you are Billous, take Beecham's Pills.

CANNOT RETURN.

Washington, Oct. 12.—President Harrison has decided that he could not go to New York to attend the Columbian celebration. Vice President Morton will act for him throughout. Attorney General Miller, Secretary Elkins and Postmaster General Wanamaker will leave for New York to-day.

NOVEL BURGLAR ALARM.

The new subtreasury building at San Francisco has an electric burglar alarm installed between the rows of bricks so that any interference with either the bricks or cement will cause an alarm to sound.

Washington, Oct. 12.—The Conrad National bank, of Kalispell, Mont., has been authorized to do business.

EXPLOSION.

Digester in a Pulp Mill Lets Go.

Orono, Me., Oct. 12.—Two large digesters in the Bangor Pulp Paper company's mill exploded causing the loss of two lives and the injury, more or less serious, of six persons. The explosion was without apparent cause, as the digesters were inspected two weeks ago and reported to be in perfect condition. The digester room, the steam engine room and the machine room were shattered into a mass of debris.

One of the mammoth digesters was thrown 300 feet into the air and huge iron beams, timbers and bricks were scattered hundreds of feet from the site of the building. Physicians and firemen were soon on the spot and water was immediately turned on the furnaces preventing the wrecked buildings from taking fire and the work of rescue was quickly begun.

Richard Zein, a German, was killed outright; Wm. Eddy, of Orono, was terribly injured and died soon after being taken out of the ruins. Walter Smith, Austin Whittemore and Wm. Buchanan were taken out with serious injuries, and Wilson Crosby, H. Farrell and James McQueen were badly bruised.

Superintendent Clark was in his office writing at the time of the explosion and miraculously escaped injury. The newspaper mill which adjoined the other buildings and which began work only last Thursday had one side blown out and one machine damaged. The plant changed hands October 1, and was owned in Boston and Springfield. The digesters were valued at $90,000. The total loss will be over $300,000.

THE BUSH SHOOTING.

Part of the Mystery Cleared Away.

His Partner Fired the Load Without Knowing That It Hit Anybody.

St. Marys, O., Oct. 12.—(Special)—The mystery surrounding the discovery of George Bush, near Carthagena, with his face riddled with shot, has been cleared by the evidence of Max Collins, who was with Bush that day.

The circumstances are very peculiar, but as both men were well known to have been on friendly terms, Collins' statements are accepted as being true.

The two had started out hunting together, but parted later in the day, and according to Collins' statements, had incidentally come together again, and it was while he (Collins) was shooting at a squirrel, that Bush received the charge that will destroy his eyesight. This is Collins' supposition only, as he claims that he did not know at the time that Bush had been shot. It will be remembered that Bush laid there fully 24 hours before he was found, and here is where the mysterious part of the whole affair comes in. It will, however, be further investigated.

Gier's general store at Chickasaw, Mercer county, was burglarized last night and $400 worth of goods stolen.

Needs assistance it may be best to render it promptly, but one should remember to use even the most perfect remedies only when needed. The best and most simple and gentle remedy is the Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co.

COLONIZATION.

Republicans Trying to Save Illinois.

Hundreds of Negroes Are Bound North to Take Part in the Election.

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 12.—Reports from Humphrey, Robine and Crockett counties say that negro men are leaving there in droves. Crops and fields are being deserted and the exodus so far amounts to about 400. Their destination seems to be Illinois. It is the general impression that they are being imported into that state by republican schemers to vote for Harrison. The democrats are very indignant.

LOUISVILLE'S LATEST CRAZE.

"Some of the women in Louisville are getting 'on to' the new craze for having their feet photographed," said the man about town to the Town Talker yesterday afternoon. You see some of our women have been to New York and heard of the fad there, and have taken it up. The custom will never become general though, for there are few women whose feet are pretty enough when undressed to have them photographed. In Rome it has long been the habit of ladies, who had well-shaped hands and feet, to have them cast in marble.

"How about the pose in the picture? How are the feet arranged?" was asked.

"I never saw but one picture," he replied, "and in that one the drapery came just above the ankles, and there was a background of black velvet to bring out the shape of the pedal extremities. There was nothing so dreadful about the photograph, though I do not think it is for general distribution. Still I was told of a young man who carries a copy of photographed feet in his vest pocket, and who shows it to friends in moments of confidence. The worst of it is the owner of the feet is a married woman. I wonder what the world is coming to?" he adds, passing on his way.—Louisville Commercial.

HOMELY AMERICAN MONEY.

"The paper money of the United States is the least handsome in the world," said the proprietor of a money exchange. "That is because this government depends entirely upon the intricacy and elaborateness of the designs on its notes and certificates for protection against counterfeiters. In foreign countries, on the other hand, much effort is directed to making their currency beautiful with pictures and arabesques in the classical style. Not only are the results more pretty to look at, but they serve their chief purpose better, for any practical engineer will tell you that real art work on a bill is far more difficult to imitate than any purely mechanical effect, no matter how complicated the latter may be made by the geometric lathe and other devices."—Washington Star.

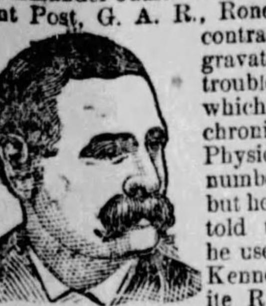
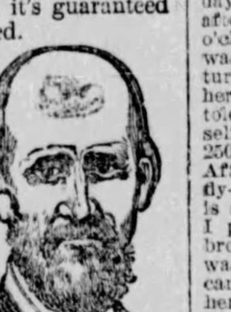
A NOBLE CAUSE.



Commander Dean.

Commander James S. Dean, of General Grant Post, G. A. R., Rondout, N. Y., contracted an aggravated stomach trouble in the Army which resulted in chronic dyspepsia. Physicians without number prescribed but he suffered untold misery until he used Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y. "After using it a week, says Commander Dean, I felt better, and in a short while was entirely cured, that terrible distress and food breaking up sour in my throat had all gone. To-day, there isn't a healthier man on earth. Comrades! if you're not well, try this great medicine on my recommendation, it's guaranteed to cure or money refunded.



Quartermaster Hale.

"I desire, says Quartermaster Wilbur L. Hale, of Pratt Post, G. A. R., Kingston, N. Y., to request my Comrades to use Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, if troubled with Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Constipation, Rheumatism, Kidney or Urinary Troubles. It cured me of a most horrible case of Salt Rheum. Physicians gave me up but Favorite Remedy healed every sore, strengthened my nerves and muscles. I now enjoy life."

PRINCESS LOUISE AN ANGLER

She Plays the Wary Salmon With Rare Dexterity.

Upon reading of the capture of a salmon in the famous Princess Pool in the Restigouche, says a writer in the Fishing Gazette, I was reminded of the night, or rather evening, that I named it. On the occasion of the visit of the royal party to the fishing grounds the lesses, Messrs. Fleming and Brydges, gave up the river for the season. It was in good trim, fine water, fish plentiful and no rods allowed. I was ordered to escort the party to and from the Indian House Pool and fitted up Mr. Brydges' famous barge, Great Caesar's Ghost. When on our way down the river her royal highness said to me: "I am not yet tired of fishing; please stop the boat where you think we can have some sport." I did so at the mouth of Chain Rock Brook, half a mile or so below the pool. Lord Lorne, the Duke of Argyle, and his daughters and aides left us there, going down in their bark canoes, leaving the Princess, Lady MacNamara, Carpenter (detective), two Indians, myself and boat's crew. The princess called me and said she would be ready to go when I thought it time. The day was warm, with south wind, and toward afternoon clouds began to rise. About 4 o'clock I called the Indians, and the princess was ready. I took the stern of the boat, turning out one of the men rather against her will, as she requested me to sit down. I told her I wanted to manage the canoe myself. We soon got up to the ground, about 250 yards above the fall of the Hero Rapid. After anchoring, the princess handed me the fly-hook, saying: "You know best what fly is most likely to kill." Not finding a fairy, I put on one of my own, a middling-sized brown. First fish broke hold before anchor was raised; second fish did the same before it came to gaff, and this seemed to disappoint her very much. I said as the sun lowered the fish would take hold better, and just then we had a slight shower with some wind and cooler. It was then about 6 o'clock, and the princess struck a fish which held, and was landed in eleven and a half minutes, and was 24 pounds in weight.

Next fish was foul hooked behind the gill cover and took 22 minutes. While playing her fish she said to me: "Don't be afraid to tell me if I do not handle them properly; I should have killed the last one quicker; he was only 22 pounds and I feared he would go through the rapid." I said: "You hold very hard, your cast could bear no more." Our next fish was a 26 pounder, and the fourth and last a 27 pounder, which I gaffed out of the canoe when within 15 yards of the rapid at 8 o'clock. We could have killed another, but the midges were pretty plenty and concluded to quit. On our way to the barge the princess said to me: "If you had been with me all the time I would have made a much larger score (about 30), and if I ever come again you must promise to go with me." I then told her that the pool had no name and asked her permission to call it the Princess Louise Pool, and so it was named.

GEN. MARION'S TOMB IN RUINS.

About fifty yards to the west of Belle Island House, Berkeley county, South Carolina, is the graveyard, a plot about twenty yards square, where are buried Gen. Marion and his wife and a number of the De Veaux family and connections. The fences are down on three sides, and four or five large trees covered with clustering vines have grown up among the tombs. Thick shrubbery and underbrush make access to the burial ground difficult, and at the west of the Marion tomb are the decayed trunk of the huge tree that fell across and smashed the tomb some eight years ago and some shattered pieces of marble and brick. The tomb of Mary Esther Marion, the widow of the general, was not damaged, but in the course of years has settled a little on one side. Marion's tomb was originally of brick, with a slate stone top, bearing the following inscription well known to the country, and written by the Hon. Keating L. Simons:

"Sacred to the memory of Brigadier General Francis Marion, who departed this life on the 27th of February, 1795, in the sixtythird year of his age, deeply regretted by all his fellow-citizens. History will record his worth and rising generations embalm his memory as one of the most distinguished patriots and heroes of the American Revolution, which elevated his native country to honor and independence, and secured to her the blessings of liberty and peace. This tribute of veneration and gratitude is erected in commemoration of the noble and disinterested virtues of the citizen and the gallant exploits of the soldier, who lived without fear and died without reproach."

A large portion of the slab containing this inscription has been broken to pieces, and it is undecipherable in its entirety. The present condition of the tomb is a ruin complete and irreparable, and it will simply be a waste of money to attempt to use any single atom of the ruin. A new tomb is the only solution of this business, and that may have to be considered by an examination of the resolution of the last legislature appropriating $300 for the restoration or repair of the tomb of Gen. Marion. Undoubtedly a permanent structure should stand there, and the crumbled and useless fragments now seen be removed from sight. Time and storm have done their work, and nothing but our native granite will carry out the state's patriotic purpose.—Charleston News.

AINU CUSTOMS.

When the Ainu meet they rub their hands together in a peculiar manner, invoking blessings upon each other the while and may continue this procedure for a considerable time. Then then stroke their beards, making a curious rumbling sound in the throat, and again rub their fingers and palms together, after which the beard is once more stroked and the business of the interview begins. The women behave in a still more curious manner. They do not salute their own sex at all, but are extremely respectful to the men, covering their eyes and looking down on the ground when they pass a male acquaintance or even a male stranger.

On entering a hut where a man is, a woman first of all removes her headdress and hangs it on her left arm. She then brushes back her front hair and covers her mouth with her right hand. All this is preliminary. When she sees that the man deigns to look at her she draws the right index finger across the left palm, up to the left arm to the shoulder, thence across the face beneath the nose and so round backward behind the ears.

When Ainu, especially Ainu women, meet after a separation that has lasted some time, they have a pretty way of telling each other experiences in a short chant, and in the pleasant sound of their singularly sweet voices one forgets their wild and unkempt looks. The Japanese women are equally remarkable for the sweetness of their voices, but have the advantage over their Ainu sisters of delicate and dainty ways, the charm of which the most stolid globe trotter is constrained to own. If the women of Ainu-Moshiri, as the Ainu call their land, are the drudges of the men in their youth and middle age, their opportunity for revenge comes with the lapse of years. The curses of an angry old woman excite the utmost terror in the bravest bear hunter. He flies panic-stricken from such names as shunuma-ash (mangy deer), tontoneppo (bald-pated boar), or worst of all, rai-guru (corpse), or inaosakguru (godless fellow). After death her ghost is regarded with deeper dread.—Saturday Review.

A STORY OF A TURTLE.

A dead turtle, a turtle with a history, was found Sunday at the foot of Alderman Donnelly's yard, No. 416 East King street, says a Lancaster paper. There is an authentic record that this particular turtle was more than 50 years old. He had been an inmate of the yard as far back as Alderman Donnelly's recollection goes, and old people in the neighborhood say they knew him or heard of his presence there when the property was owned by the Rodgers family. As regularly as the first warm days of spring came around the turtle would emerge to the surface of the ground, and thereafter he would be seen until late in the fall. For the past 10 years the Donnelly household has watched these appearances with much interest, and the turtle became known to the whole neighborhood.

Several years ago a goard was placed at the side of an iron trough at the foot of the yard, and up this inclined plane the turtle crawled each morning to get a drink of water. One time he fell in and was nearly drowned. Never afterward would he go to the trough. He then made daily visits to the hydrant in the front part of the yard, and after quenching his thirst he would drag himself slowly to the other end of the lot. He was last seen late in the fall, and when this spring came and he did not appear, a search was made for him. He was found among a lot of stone, tin cans, etc., dead. He was surrounded on all sides by a barrier, and it is probable that he crawled into the place and was overcome by the cold before he burrowed into the earth. Starvation and cold caused his death. When found he was standing in an almost perpendicular position, with his head between two stones.

GIRLS UNDER LOCK AND KEY

It is the Custom in Brazil to Hide Maidens from Man's View.

Mr. Bigg-Wither, an English engineer who was employed some years in railroad surveying in Brazil, tells some interesting experiences among the landed proprietors, says the New Orleans Times-Democrat. Being a man, he had a better opportunity than I to know how women deport themselves in the presence of the other sex. Let me quote a few paragraphs pertaining to a visit he made in the valley of Ivahy.

Senhor Andrade was an old man, and allowed his wife to do most of the talking for him when she was in the room. One of her first questions was to know whether I was married, and on hearing that I was still in the full enjoyment of freedom she proceeded to enlarge upon the delights of married life, at the same time informing me that she had five unmarried daughters. After this pretty broad hint of what was expected, of course I expressed a wish to make the acquaintance of these fair members of the family. Her face became suddenly grave, she looked hesitatingly at her husband who had remained silently puffing his cigarette during the conversation, and he said something which I did not understand, but which at once dispelled her momentary gravity. The old man got up, went across to a locked door, turned the key, opened it and disappeared into a dark chamber within. Almost immediately he returned, saying, "The girls are not accustomed to see strangers, and are afraid." Meanwhile the senhora, who evidently now determined that her daughters should show themselves, had also disappeared into the secret chamber, from which now proceeded sounds of whispering and suppressed giggling. Presently the senhora reappeared, leading a very modest-looking damsel of about nineteen years, closely followed by three others, apparently somewhat younger. All were overwhelmed with intense shyness and an hysterical desire to laugh. After the formal and separate introduction of each—be it noted that the lady is here introduced to the gentleman—they all scampered back into the secret chamber, and their papa turned the key upon them. At this time I was ignorant of the custom which is so general in these out-of-the-way parts of keeping the women, or rather the daughters, of the family locked up like wild beasts, consequently I did not hesitate to express my wonder and to ask why it was done in this case. In answer Senhor Andrade said that it was the custom of the country, and he had never thought of bringing up his daughters in any other way. "Do they ever go out?" I asked. "No, never," he replied; "not now that they are grown. They had all learned horseback riding when children, but since then they had been shut up in the house, according to the custom for respectable girls, where they must remain until husbands can be obtained for them." Poor things! It is to be hoped that there are few old maids among the lasses of Brazil.

REGENERATION.

To secure a normal and regular tissue change throughout the body use Brandreth's Pills. This tissue metamorphosis consists in constantly proceeding waste of tissue and its regeneration. Brandreth's Pills are the best solvent of the products of disintegration of the tissues and increases their elasticity. They are an alterative and eliminative remedy, which allay irritation and remove obstruction by aiding nature and are of great benefit in cases of temporary and habitual constipation, torpid liver, biliousness, headache, indigestion, rheumatism and diseases arising from an impure state of the blood.

Brandreth's Pills are purely vegetable, absolutely harmless, and safe to take at any time.

THE QUESTION OF PLAGIARISM.

Gems of Thought, It Appears, May be Stolen If Put in New Settings.

No one has ever been able to define what plagiarism is, and therefore it is unlikely that there should be any general agreement as to what makes a man liable to such a charge, says the London Telegraph. The question is perpetually recurring in other fields of literature as well as in homiletics, and no one has laid down any scientific principle of sufficient clearness to decide all disputes.

It can not be that a man who is indebted to another for an idea is guilty of theft if he adapts it for his own purpose; for, if such appropriation be fraud, nearly all modern writers have committed unpardonable sins against the ancients. They may not have known everything "down in Judee," but the range of literary and speculative ideas was remarkably extensive in Greece, and if we are going to judge those of our own writers—to confine ourselves only to our own nationality—who have owed inspiration to Athens, we shall have to condemn a good many illustrious names. Chaucer, Spenser, Shakespeare, Milton, Dryden, Pope—whose withers will be unwrung? A short time ago a critic took occasion to draw up a list of instances in which the poet laureate had adopted thoughts and expressions from his predecessors. It was wholly the work of supererogation, for Lord Tennison would be the first to admit the debt which he, in common with other poets, owes to Homer and Virgil. Classical phrases are taken wholesale, as every student knows; witness such lines as "This way and that dividing the swift mind," and "She could not draw the quiet night into her blood"—the last a capital instance, for it assimilates and improves upon the original.

It is not freshness of thought alone, but also freshness of treatment, which gives an author the right to call his work original. If we take the supreme instance of Shakespeare we see at once that the real question in many cases of this kind is not where the writer got the idea, but what he has done with it. A poet, a novelist, an essayist, a preacher can take a hint in a crude state and transform it by the associations and characteristics of his own mind that he is justly entitled to claim it as his own. He can not be called a plagiarist at all events, for many of these so-called thefts are unconscious reminiscences, unrecognized as such, which are worked into the texture of a man's own thoughts and made instinct with his own personality. In novels and romances, again, we have numerous instances of the same free exchange; no one ought to call it by a harder name unless he is able to discount the frequency of literary coincidences or possesses a higher originality than that to which most of us can attain. Such reflections, no doubt, were present to the minds of the Congregational Union when they absolved Mr. Woods from the charges made against him. He was no plagiarist, because, while from Dr. Dyke's valuable store he selected a few homiletic gems, he presented them to his congregation at Clapton, sparkling in some original setting of his own.

HOW IT STRUCK HIM.

"What ails you?" asked Mr. Gaswell of Algernon Fitzpercy.

"I called on Miss Dukane lawst evening, doncher know."

"Well?"

"Well, would you believe it, the fah cweature's bwute of a father kicked me down the front steps."

"Indeed!"

"Yes, sir! Actually kicked me twice—first with his wight foot and then with his left. What do you think of that?"

"Well, it looks very much like two soles with but a single thought."—Pittsburg Chronicle.

It is said that Miss Dora Miller, the New Orleans teacher who invented and recently had patented a blackboard eraser, has been offered $5,000 for her patent right.

INDIANA.

Great Interest Centered in the Oil Fields.

St. Marys, O., Oct. 12.—(Special)—The greatest interest in the Indiana oil fields at present is centered around the McCallister farm wells, which pool has proven to be the most productive spot in the entire field. The wells are not holding up quite as well as was expected, but at the same time are producing splendidly for a new field. Last month was by far the greatest month since the field was opened up, and the increase in production was phenomenal. In Wells county, for the month of September, there were six completed wells with a daily production of 700 barrels, eight drilling wells and 13 rigs up, making a total of 21 in new work. In Jay county there is an increase of two in completed wells and 600 barrels in production, while in drilling wells there is an increase of three, and an increase of eight in rigs up. Adams county shows a decrease of five in completed work, and only a shortage of 115 barrels in production, and in rigs up and wells drilling there is an increase of 11. In the entire Indiana field there is an increase of 750 barrels in production, and 21 rigs up, with 52 drilling wells for the month of September.

Sterling bonbon scoops, $3—Cawood's.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCHES.

Minneapolis, Oct. 12.—The triennial national council of Congregational churches, the most important convention of that denomination, opened here this morning, and will continue in session until next Tuesday. Over 500 prominent divines and laymen of the denomination, representing every state in the union, are in attendance. The national council is a delegated body, but having simply advisory rather than authoritative powers. Nevertheless it wields a powerful influence upon Congregational church polity, and the forthcoming sessions are likely to be characterized by a high order of discussion, whether viewed from a theological or a literary standpoint. Many matters of importance to the church are to be considered at the present meeting.

Silver finger bowls, $5—Cawood's.

BANK ROBBERY.

Chatham, Ont., Oct. 12.—The Standard bank of this city has been robbed of a large sum of money in a mysterious manner. The officials are reticent, but the amount is placed at $5,000. The money was left in the letter box over night instead of being placed in the safe, and in the morning it was missing. A government detective is working on the case. The bank is secured from loss by a guarantee bond.

Wedding gifts, $3, $5, $8—“Cawood's.”

FIGHTING THE FIRE.

Much Damage Reported in Minnesota.

Fosston, Minn., Oct. 12.—A fire is raging in the Beltrami county pineries, doing much damage to standing pine. A large body of men left here early yesterday morning to assist in fighting the fire at Stadsvold and Larson's saw mill. The mill, with 4,000,000 feet of sawed lumber and 3,000,000 logs, is reported in danger. If rain does not fall inside of twelve hours the fire will reach the Walker and Red Lake pine.

ADULTERY.

Wapakoneta, O., Oct. 12.—(Special)—Frank Dawson, a dentist of this town, was arrested at Lima last night on the charge of adultery, on a warrant sworn out by James Weatherby, a farmer living near here.

A LIVELY WAR RECORD.

There is a veteran in the pension office at Washington, Captain Thomas J. Spencer, who was present in 40 battles, was captured three times and escaped twice, and saw the inside of seven confederate prisons.

In what year was the famous old “Liberty Bell” first rung in Philadelphia?

The Home Jewel will give an elegant Chickering pure-toned, upright piano to the first person answering the above question correctly; two first-class round-trip railroad tickets to Chicago and return and admission tickets for two to World's Fair grounds to witness dedication of buildings October 21, 1892, for each of next two correct answers; a gold decorated China dinner set for the fourth correct answer.

An additional special prize, a beautiful pair of gold and pearl opera glasses, will be given for the first correct answer from each state. Each person answering must send fifteen two-cent stamps for 6 mos. subscription to The Home Jewel, the illustrated family paper containing particulars of our prize competition for a free trip to California or Florida. The object of offering these prizes is to increase the circulation of this excellent family paper. Send to-day and you may secure a costly prize. Names of all prize-winners in October number. Write plainly name, post-office, express office, county and state. Address The Home Jewel, Suite 601, Manhattan Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

LEGAL NOTICE.

Henry Firth, whose place of residence is Coldwater, Branch County, Michigan, and whose postoffice address is Coldwater, Michigan, will take notice that, on the 14th day of September, A. D., 1892, in the Court of Common Pleas of Lucas County, Ohio, where the action is now pending, being cause No. 33,563, the undersigned, Caroline J. Firth, filed her petition against said Henry Firth, praying for divorce from him, upon the grounds of extreme cruelty and gross neglect of duty; and for the custody of their minor children, Lewis H. Firth, and Franklin E. Firth. The said Henry Firth is required to answer the petition in said action on or before the 10th day of November, A. D., 1892, or such divorce may be granted.

BAD BOYS KILLED HER

A School Teacher Gives Up the Battle of Life.

She Could Not Master the Pupils.

The Children Jumped Upon Her and Blackened the Woman's Eyes.

Chatham, Ont., Oct. 12.—Overcome with shame and anger at her inability to punish one of the refractory boys in her school yesterday Miss Alice Granger, a school teacher, has taken her own life by means of morphine.

Miss Granger has had charge of the school for three years and has always been successful with her pupils until the present term, when a half dozen incorrigible boys came under her control. For six weeks they have made her life a burden to her by refusing to obey rules and instigating rebellion among the younger pupils. The teacher appealed several times to the school board for assistance, but, as two of its members are the fathers of the troublesome students, she never received any satisfaction.

She finally determined to take forcible action in the matter, and after a particularly bad outbreak, tried to use a rattan on Harry Bortling. He rebelled and in the scrimmage other boys came to his aid and blackened the teacher's eyes.

She at once closed the school and returned home. Last night she was found stretched across her bed dead. An empty phial of morphine lay beside her, and in her hand was found this note: "I am tired of teaching bad boys."

IN MAYBRICK'S BEHALF.

Editor Stead Has Taken Up the Cudgel.

He Says the Woman Is Innocent and Should Be Released From Prison.

London, Oct. 12.—Editor Stead, formerly of the Pall Mall Gazette and now of the Review of Reviews, has written an article entitled "Ought Mrs. Maybrick to be tortured to death?" for the next number of the latter publication.

The chief feature of the article is Mr. Stead's assurance that he has a copy of the deathbed confession of Henry Wilson, who says that he and a woman other than Mrs. Maybrick administered the arsenic that caused Mr. Maybrick's death.

Wilson died recently in South Africa. A similar copy of the confession is also in the hands of Sir Charles Russell, attorney-general. Mr. Stead believes the confession and thinks that the punishment of Mrs. Maybrick is about to be considered by the United States government.

In view of the prospective remonstrances from diplomatic sources and the great probability that Mrs. Maybrick is innocently punished, Mr. Stead urges that she be released before Christmas lest she die in prison. Home Secretary Asquith or the Earl Roseberry or Mr. Gladstone, he says, should act at once to save her from death in confinement.

A REPORTER'S REVENGE.

It Was a Complimentary Paragraph He Wrote, But It Hurt.

There is a man in this city, says the New York Herald, who, like the original Hamlet was reputed to be, is fat and scant of breath, but, unlike the melancholy Dane, he is also exceedingly vain and pompous. He occupies a position of some little prominence, and solely on that account newspaper men occasionally resort to him for views and information. Laboring under the [illegible] he really possesses a profound knowledge of public questions, and that on that account his utterances are occasionally quoted, he sometimes puts on airs and adopts a manner toward the interviewer which is exceedingly disagreeable and even positively insulting.

"I'm really tired of thinking for you fellows," he remarked some time ago to a reporter who had asked his opinion concerning some proposed legislation. "I wish you would do some thinking for yourselves and not come bothering me with questions."

"I am much obliged to you for the hint," said the reporter, with some difficulty checking an impulse to give free vent to his feelings then and there. "I will do a little thinking for myself."

The Scheme Hatched.

Then he went away and did some thinking and hatched a scheme of revenge.

He wrote a neat and highly eulogistic item—a paragraph about the vain and pompous individual, complimenting him highly upon his courteous manners and concluding with the statement that he made it a rule never to sit down when riding on the "L" while there was a woman in the same car unprovided with a seat.

"Now let it work. Mischief, thou art afoot," he remarked gleefully when he had finished.

It did work.

The little paragraph was extensively copied in society weeklies, which always keep a sharp lookout for little personal squibs. The V. and P. individual found himself suddenly possessed of a reputation which he had done nothing to deserve. But he had to live up to it. He had always been in the habit of seizing the first seat he could catch on an "L" train and sticking to it no matter how many women might be standing up near him, while he devoured the contents of his favorite morning or afternoon newspaper. He could do that no longer.

Revenge Is Sweet.

As he lives up in Harlem and his office is away down town, and he is, besides, fat and scant of breath, as I have before remarked, the physical discomfort which he endures daily can be better imagined than described. And he hasn't even the approval of his own conscience to make it easier for him, for he knows that he doesn't do it from any desire to save women the inconvenience of standing in the cars, but merely because he is afraid that if he doesn't do it some people will think that he doesn't deserve the reputation with which he has been publicly credited.

And whenever that reporter sees the V. and P. individual hanging on to a strap in an "L" car and looking supremely miserable, he just hugs himself for joy. Perhaps he ought to be sorry for having written what wasn't strictly truthful about him, but he isn't a bit.

Great is the power of the press and sweet is revenge.

WORST FORM ECZEMA

Baffled Best Medical Skill for Eight Months. Cured in Two Months by Cuticura Remedies.

This is to certify that a child of mine had Eczema in its worst form, and which baffled the best medical skill that could be employed here. The little sufferer was wrapped in agony for at least eight months. Six months of that time its suffering was simply untold, then I began the use of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, in two months the awful disease had ceased its vengeance, and my darling boy had rest, and to all appearance the disease had yielded, but I continued the medicine for several months after no trace could be seen of it on any part of his body. The doctors here watched the disease with much interest, and could only say "Well done!" The case was known far and wide, and everybody was much surprised. But thanks to CUTICURA REMEDIES. Could there be anything on earth that would cause a father to rejoice it surely would be when the little innocent one could have such a remedy at hand. (See portrait herewith.)

J. A. NICOLES, Bunker Hill, Ind.

A child was brought to me with chronic eczema that had defied splendid treatment from many good doctors. As a regular M. D., should have continued similar treatment, but thought it useless. So put it on CUTICURAS. The child is well.
